People

leaders

These are the people who have made NNU what NNU is. We are a blessed campus with faculty and staff who are personally invested in our lives. The Board of Trustees, Cabinet, and the President serve a dual purpose on campus: on the one hand, they simply symbolize the ruling order and system which keeps NNU running smoothly; on the other hand, they make important decisions which can influence the NNU student body in a very direct manner.

1. Board of Trustees.
2. President David Alexander.
3. President David and Sandy Alexander.
4. The Cabinet.
5. Vice President for Student Development Carey Cook.

The coming of fall indicates two things: the anticipation of incoming students and the ever-beloved Leadership Retreat. One hundred and fifty student leaders were sent into the “wilderness” of Cascade for a three-day period. Students took part in community building activities—such as group prayer sessions and teamwork games. As reputation precedes them, Student Life executed yet another opportunity for students to grow as individuals and as leaders amongst the NNU community.

The Student Government Association, or SGA, showcases key student leaders of the NNU community. During the spring semester of 2010, candidates either went through an election process or underwent interviews with the elected executive cabinet. While each position varies in duties, all members unite under the common goal of representing the student body. This years SGA motto, "Big Hairy Audacious Goal." focused on getting EVERY student to attend at least one event. With the variety of events and opportunities presented by SGA, they were succesful at reaching the majority of students.

Class councils are the elected representatives of every class for both fall and spring semesters. Each grade is given a specific task that they are to complete during the year—Freshere, Homecoming, etc. Each class council has two representatives in the Senate, the formal link between the student body and the governing powers of the school, who vote on matters ranging from the budgets of clubs to the amendment of NNU's Constitution. Jared Trygg, the Executive Vice President, oversees the Senate's weekly meetings as its members do their best to enrich NNU with the powers they have been granted.

1. Senators Cody Pearson, Mark Ostyn, Nathaniel Leslie, Robby Skinner, Jared Trygg, Geoff Groves, Jordan Scott, Kramer Uvila, Jennifer Groves, Michelle Borbe, Emma Roemhildt, Paige O'Neill.

1. Senior Class Council: Jung Soo Kim, Mark Ostyn, Rachel Allen, Grady Harmon, Kristen Parke, Shayna Shute, Johnathon Cossel, Katie Thompson, Larissa Glover.

2. Junior Class Council: Kramer Uvila, Sooky Lovell, Kellen Parton, Geoff Groves, Lakesha Nilles, Molly Reid, Arielle Chao, Lauren Hartford, Dawn Linnell, Amanda Snyder, Nathaniel Leslie.

3. Sophomore Class: Jordan Sevier, Cody Pearson, Kellie Miller, Carly Brog, Emma Roemhildt, Josh Mast, Josh Reams, Brandon Snyder, Tara Watters, Samantha Hill, Robby Skinner.

travel groups

For NNU's travel group representatives, the summer months offer a once in a lifetime opportunity to reach students in a meaningful manner. Those chosen for Covenant, Parable, and Witness utilize their team's specific gifts to create memorable interactions with churches throughout the Northwest. Covenant plays music, Parable performs skits, and Witness hangs out with campers. The summer provided a time of spiritual growth, life long friendships, and of course fun and games.

Student mentors are given the opportunity to invest in students on a regular basis. Peer Mentors build relationships and support underclass students—usually over a cup of coffee. Multicultural Mentors help international students make the cultural transition. As college students deal with the “no sleep phase” or “Freshman 15,” Peer Health Educators help educate on the realities facing undergrad life. Life Group Leaders fulfill the role of spiritual supporters for underclass wings by building relationships and leading Bible studies.

Peer Health Educators: 1. Bryce Bartlett. 2. Craig Wolfe. 3. Stephanie Bartlow.

Ford/Culver

The Ford and Culver RA's are brave and fearless souls—willing to conquer all. No jabs intended, but it is no easy task to care for freshmen. These young men and women make the first year one worth remembering. With all the ups and downs experienced during this time in the college experience the RA's pull it together. They magically turn potentially awkward situations into fun filled Twixes and create a welcoming atmosphere. All of which could not be done without the help of RD's Lindsay Kuhl and Mark Baas.

Thanks to Robbyn Lande and first-time RD Eric Duke, the sophomore class was provided with homey living atmospheres and the needed space to enjoy the company of one's friends and build community. In Dooley Hall, students can utilize both the upstairs and down stairs lobbies for co-ed activities while the guys in Sutherland enjoy a lobby geared towards entertainment with a flat-screen TV and a ping-pong table.

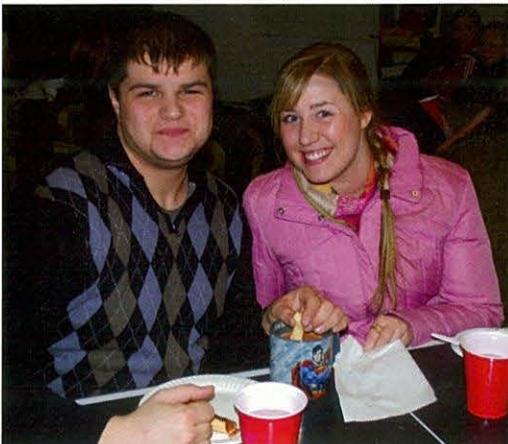

1. Dooley RA's:

corlett/ olsen/holly

In terms of dorm life the Corlett, Olsen, and Holly apartments mark a new phase of life. For on campus residents, these apartment-style complexes offer the freedom needed for junior and senior students. Corlett and Olsen are known for the bimonthly treat of Danna's Doughnuts after Time Out as well as a plethora of gatherings in the Corlett lobby. The Holly residents had the pleasure of Kylee's Oscar Night and other fun events hosted by the RAs throughout the year.

Whether you're tapping your toes to the swinging rhythm of a Jazz Ensemble, moved to tears by a beautiful symphony performed by the Concert Band, or pumped up by the energy of the Pep Band at a game, it's easy to see that NNU's bands make up a core segment of NNU's culture. The bands shined at the NNU Homecoming Concert, playing songs coordinated with Homecoming's theme, "Sing to Him a New Song!" From the littlest piccolo to the biggest timpani, NNU's pulse moves along to the beat set by these talented instrumentalists.

choir

The campus comes alive with the sound of music—music from fellow students' mouths. University Men's Choir, Bella Voce, Northwesterners, Crusader Choir... many options are available for the vocally gifted on campus. Bella Voce and Men's Choir flew to New York at the beginning of spring break to share their joy. One of the highlights for the choirs was in April, as alumnus/pianist Jerry Nelson performed in concert with the Crusader Choir in a show titled "Symphony of Love."

Organizations

Clubs and organizations give students an excellent way to interact with a variety of communities within the greater community of NNU. When properly formed, these groups can even be eligible for funding from SGA. Some of the newer clubs at NNU include “Naz-ercising” (the wonderful union of Nazarenes and exercising) and The Paintballing Club. An ASL (American Sign Language) club looks to be forming in the near future as well, further contributing to the diversity of NNU’s many clubs and organizations.

Summer Missions

Christian liberal arts universities have the unique opportunity to encourage students towards social justice issues while in mission settings. Throughout the school year Chaplain Gene Schandorff invites missions organizations on campus to share their vision with students. Such organizations have included Extreme Nazarene and the favored Youth In Mission. Summer missions prepare short-term volunteers for a life of servanthood both on the mission field and in their local communities.

Week One is a flurry of activity. For freshmen, "initiation" takes place during the Scavenger Hunt where students are expected to think and act outside the box. The Ice Cream Social sets the stage with sundaes and quality social time. RootbeerFest included an unexpected twist holding a drive-in movie. Jazz on the Lawn, annually hosted by the Brick House, sets the tone for rekindled friendships. Rollerscamming wrapped up the week with wacky "In the Beginning" themed costumes and skating.

This event, held after the first week of classes, took place in Trinity Pines Camp up in Cascade. Freshman Retreat, offered relaxation and refreshment in an off-campus setting, surrounded by the beauty of nature. Two hundred and twenty freshmen, seventeen NNU staff members and fourteen student leaders all attended. This year was NNU's second Freshman Retreat since its beginning in 2009.

broom hockey

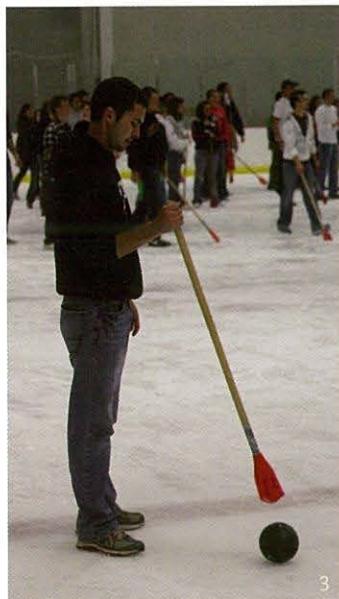

With the ice primed, sticks ready, shoes laced, and students pumped, Ice World opened its doors. The festivities began with free style “skating”—code for “not falling on one’s face”. The night continued with competitions between the grades. Students went head-to-head in activities such as five-on-five until the night ended with an epic dance off. The competitive spirit came to a climax as the freshman class overran the seniors in their final moments of glory.

This year's Fresheree was an array of talent, quirkiness and laughter. Fresheree is a night where students of all grade levels get to perform just about anything they want for the audience; ranging from Amos Hendershott's German jokes to Grant Miller's successful attempt to snort and vomit two goldfish. The theme for Fresheree this year was Superheroes. "Ironman" (Jared Trygg) and "Ironwoman" (Jessica Novello) hosted the event that ended with a cast of superheroes dancing to a cavalcade of songs that left everyone chuckling for days.

Social Vice President Ariel Glover planned this fun filled event for roughly 400 students. This “Opposites Attract” affair began with Messenger Pizza in the Historic District of Nampa. Students then watched the ultimate story of opposites attracting, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, at the Nampa Civic Center. To the surprise of everyone, fireworks were set off at the bonfire for a wiz-bang finish. The second night included Qudoba at the Egyptian Theater, Improv Everywhere in downtown Boise, the Discovery Center, and the traditional midnight movie at Overland Cinemas.

Homecoming

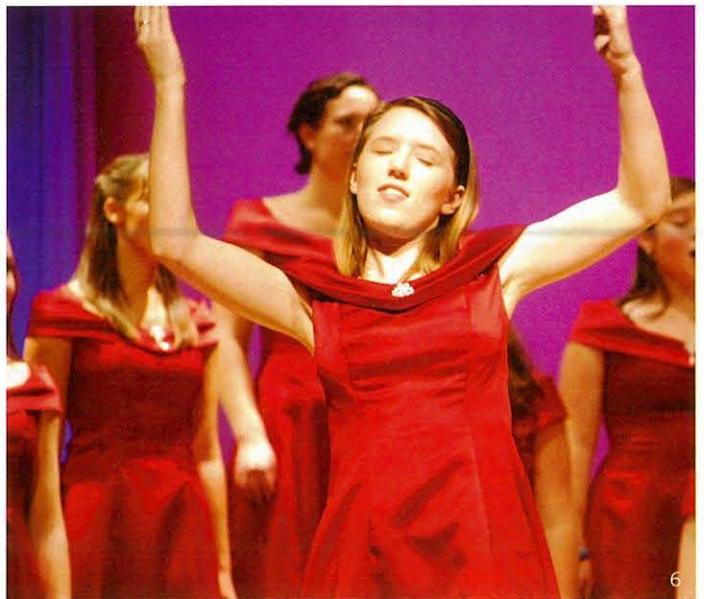

Homecoming is a week of tradition. Alumni from around the country make appearances at class reunions and participate in the week's varying festivities. Students showcase their musical, acting, and athletic abilities as the focus is placed on the current talent of each undergraduate class. The Homecoming Coronation is the pinnacle of social achievement. Seniors Diego Estrada and Ashley Egger were honored with the titles of Homecoming King and Queen.

The fall production of Noises Off was a major success for NNU's theater community. The fast paced comedy, written by playwright Michael Frayn, gave audience members an unusual look into the world of theater. Act one begins with the chaos and energy found only on dress rehearsal night. Act two uncovers more cast tension as actors and actresses vie for attention a month into performance. The play ends in even more madness as actors and actresses attempt to assemble a worthy production... and finally remember those pesky sardines.

procrastination

As finals round the corner, students find themselves frenzied for a few brief moments of rest and recuperation. To usher in the Christmas spirit the freshman class council along with Social Vice President Ariel Glover hosted the annual Procrastination Party. This years activities included gingerbread house contests, ornament decorating, an ugly sweater contest, extreme amounts of snack foods, and of course, a picture with Santa Claus.

C.L. activities

In an effort to include students who might be less like Dwight Howard and more like Dwight Schrute, NNU offered a variety of Campus League Activities. Students cooked chili, played Campus Golf (which involves smacking a tennis ball around campus with a golf club), bowled, played ping-pong and even signed up to “assassinate” one another with water guns all over campus. With an opportunity to put down their books and show their wild sides, students of all ages and sizes participated.

SPRING: Thirsty for more Campus League Activities, NNU students helped make the spring events as popular (if not more popular) than the fall events. Spring Campus League Activities held some of the largest events in NNU League Activities history, including 187 students participating in a world-record breaking game of tunnel ball. Aside from breaking world records, "The Amazing Race: Treasure Valley" also highlighted a variety of entertaining spring activities. Kenton Lee proudly commended the "great year of Campus League Activities."

servicing

Through painting houses, mowing lawns, raking some leaves or cleaning up a canal, NNU has the chance to become something more than just a school through community service—it becomes an agent of change, love and hope. In October, over 150 students volunteered for “NNU Serve Day,” reaching out to the area immediately surrounding NNU through food collection, lawn work and even a few rounds of bingo at some nearby retirement centers. Community service activities such as these are humbling reminders of the power that Christ-centered service can have on a community.

The intention of Wednesday Night Live is to regularly provide students with entertainment in a community setting. Student Center Director Justin Hugus has done just that. For no additional cost to students a wide variety of bands have been given the opportunity to showcase their abilities—some of which included Moving Mountains and Root Down. In addition, WNL has included themed nights such as NNU Idol, Spelling Bee, and Comedy Night. Overall, Hugus created extraordinary memories for the student body.

Brick house

The Brick House has a reputation as being one of the most celebrated student resources on campus. During the first semester, juniors Emily Ogle, Kasi Farley, Erin Diefenbach, and Kaley Lione inhabited the home. The supervision of the house underwent some changes over Christmas break and Kenton Lee moved in to serve as the director of the Brick House for the spring semester. No matter who was living in the house, it was an asset to the students and hosted a wide array of events for all to enjoy.

week back

2011 marked the first year for the event Week Back. Social V.P. Ariel Glover chose to extend the purpose of Week One, reconnection and amusement, into the second semester. The first Friday night of the semester, students gathered for games, snacks, and a piñata in the Student Center. Roughly 200 students finished out the event at a late night visit to the Nampa Rec Center where activities such as rock climbing, swimming, and competitions took place.

Beloved Community and Winter Awakening bring some theological and intellectual superstars to the campus. Reverend James Lawson, a past Beloved Community speaker, graced the campus with his presence again in 2011, speaking on the importance of community as a key element of hope for humankind. Reverend Jon Furman was the Winter Awakening speaker, speaking for a week in chapel. Furman challenged us to think critically and reflect on the power of the Bible. These events are both social and spiritual gatherings, presenting an opportunity for respectful discourse over a variety of issues.

The black tie

The Black Tie event, once known as the Valentines Banquet, offered students a uniquely formal experience. With nearly 300 students in attendance, the night promised both excitement and novelty, which was assured with the night's chosen venue, the Boise Art Museum. Students were pleasantly surprised to find that DANCING was a primary focus of the night's festivities. Under the direction of Heirloom Dance Studios and a 5-piece band students took part in the first dance in NNU's history.

The spring musical provides NNU with the remarkable chance to be seen and heard throughout the surrounding Treasure Valley. Community members know this annual delight to best represent the talents and abilities of NNU's music department. Under the instruction of Rick Strader students presented a colorful and quirky representation of Hans Christian Anderson's The Ugly Duckling. Mr. NNU

From superheroes to villains Mr. NNU had it all! The freshman class council produced a fun filled night of frivolity showcasing the comical talents of eight elected participants. The competition included three components from personal talents to a question and answer session. The contestants, chosen for their unique sense of humors and entertaining personalities, gave the judges a run for their money. Despite all the talent a winner was chosen. Senior Kyle Blaser gave an outstanding performance, and was duly awarded the title of 2011's Mr. NNU.

NNU provides many opportunities to go and serve. Over spring break Julene Tegerstrand, Director of Student Ministries, led a spring break missions trip to Vancouver, B.C. As with last year's spring break missions trip to Vancouver, B.C., students worked with Mission Possible. The heart of Mission Possible is to serve the disadvantaged within the city. This setting challenged the students to see from different perspective as they worked with the homeless and impoverished people of the city, serving meals and distributing clothes.

Under the direction of Charissa Dufour, ten students took to the stage in Neil Simon's production of Fools. The spring play was both comical and thought provoking in its roundabout wacky way. The story follows the journey of Leon Tolchinsky as he attempts to break the curse of stupidity that holds the inhabitants of Kulyenchikov. In a matter of twenty-four hours, audiences are taken through the twists and turns that can only arise when all are endearingly ignorant.

Although the lady 'Saders concluded the season with a record of 5-13, the 2010 season had some clear high points as NNU opened the conference with a home win versus Central Washington University. The NNU Women's Soccer Program won the GNAC Academic Championship for the 5th time in 8 years, posting a cumulative GPA of 3.47. The day after graduation, for the third time since 2007, the team will also be returning to Guatemala on a two-week mission trip to help in construction projects in the nation's capital.

Captains Renatto Brito and John Stump led these twenty Crusaders to battle ending the season at 8-8. As a way to give back to the community, the team hosted a youth soccer tournament. To build their own community the men headed to McCall for training camp where they got in shape for the season and welcomed the new members. Players Alex Mangeac, Jose Oregon and Stephen Marshall led the team with most points. All three men were named second-team of GNAC's Men's Soccer All-Star Team.

Volleyball this year was led by co-captains Kailey Trautmann and Haley Hevern. Junior Reisa Fessler and senior Haley Hevern led this year with the most points this season. Both have been named to the 2010 GNAC All-Conference Volleyball Team. A senior from Central Point, Ore, Haley Hevern, also led this season in digs: 459. Women's Volleyball managed a 4-7 win-loss record at home, and ended the season at 7-17. The Sadlers won most of their games with the score at 3-0.

The athletes on the Cross Country team are just like any normal NNU student, except that they can run thirty times as far as anybody else. At the GNAC Cross Country Championship in Yakima, Washington, the NNU men finished in 4th and the women finished 6th. NNU also proudly sent Barak Watson and Jaclyn Puga to the NCAA DII National Championships in Louisville, Kentucky in December. With a talented core of runners, it will be exciting to watch the Cross Country team continue to mature and develop in the coming years.

women's basketball

Of the twelve current members on the NNU Women's Basketball Roster, only one (GNAC All-Conference Honorable Mention selectee Beth Johnson) is a Senior. What does that mean? Growing on the talent and leadership that Johnson and others brought to the squad, you can expect big things from this team in the future. Already playing over-.500 basketball, the development of this young group will be fun to watch in the coming years as they build upon the solid legacy of our past Lady 'Saders.

men's basketball

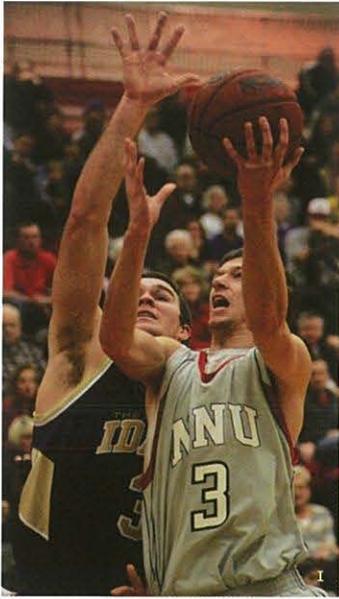

A constant source of pride for the NNU community, the Men's Basketball team shined over the 2010-2011 regular season. Winning their last 6 games, having two players (Barkdoll and Egwuonwu) make the GNAC All-Conference Team, and Coach Hills winning co-GNAC Coach-of-the-Year are just a few of their many accomplishments. Their win in Caldwell over College of Idaho was also the first road win for the 'Saders over their in-state rival since 1997. Look for the good times to keep rolling in the coming years with this talented group.

With 9 women and 2 men, the NNU Cheerleading squad has a distinct presence at many of NNU's events. Adding a bit of style, vigor, and enthusiasm to these events, these cheerleaders certainly know how to get the NNU student body pumped up. Their impact goes far beyond NNU's campus, however; a visit to McCall for Idaho's Special Olympics was a highlight for many on the Cheerleading squad, and a first for the entire group.

NNU's softball team is capable of both offensive outpourings and defensive showdowns: they racked up 44 runs in five wins in March, and they also allowed four runs or less in four of their March wins. Kristin Refsland was honored as GNAC Softball Player of the Week in mid-March, going .480 over eight games with a home run and six RBI. This focus on well-rounded softball will continue to be the recipe for success for future squads.

Opening weekend started with an appropriate award for the NNU baseball team: J.T. Brodrick was named co-GNAC Pitcher of the Week for his dazzling 6 2/3 inning performance over Minot State in mid-February. The pitching prowess of this team is evident, although its hitters are no slackers either. This team certainly knows how to win on the road, winning 10 of their first 12 road games, and demonstrating that they are worthy of the heightened expectations many had coming into this year.

track & field

Success continues to abound for NNU's talented squad of Track & Field athletes. From Andrew Curtis receiving co-GNAC Indoor Track Freshman of the Year, to the men finishing 3rd and the women 4th at the GNAC Indoor Championships in February, to the dominance of the Saders at their outdoor home opener, there is much to celebrate about this remarkable group. The trail of broken records left by this group indicates the special talent that we have been honored with the opportunity to watch.

NNU's official golf roster consists of eleven athletes, with seven of them being either freshmen or sophomores. This squad clearly has a good mixture of youth and experience, and there is talent present at all ages in this group: junior Zach Grunig had the lowest round of all players at the River Bend Golf Course in March, and the team as a whole received a top-50 national ranking earlier in the year (the highest in NNU's history as a Division II school).

FALL. What better way to unwind the semester than with intramurals! Intramurals, headed by Mark Wade, brought the campus alive with competition! Fall was filled with flag football, powderpuff, soccer, outdoor volleyball, and ultimate Frisbee games during the evenings and Saturdays. Many of the former champions were defeated this year. Junior Tim Streight hit the right stride by being on three winning teams and placing 2nd on a fourth team. As per usual, each winning team was awarded a golden trophy and the traditional victory t-shirts.

SPRING: Four Campus League Sports were offered over the second semester: men's and women's basketball, coed outdoor soccer, and coed softball. In some of these sports, students were also offered the opportunity to participate in "A" or "B" league teams, depending on the level of competition that they felt the most comfortable playing against. The intramurals MVP of the entire year, Kenton Lee argued, was Tim Streight, who played on 4 intramural championship squads throughout the year.

NNU athletes never have to worry about having enough support when they play in Nampa—students come out in droves for home games, proudly donning Red and Black in support of their alma mater. Now referred to as “Cru-Crazies” in the “CRU ZOO,” the student section seems to cheer with a new level of intensity. SGA Athletic Liaison Kelsey Shacklett, whose vision for a newly energized student section has been a resounding success, has engineered these changes.

Those chosen to receive the Who's Who honor are among the brightest and best of the senior class. Qualified seniors were nominated by department heads and faculty to be placed on the ballot. Approximately thirty students were then chosen among the student body. The Who's Who representatives are given the honor of representing NNU in the publication Who's Who Among Students.

and off the pitch. We've been having a lot of fun as a team."

The Crusader men just returned from a trip to Hawaii, where they opened up their season, going 2-1.

The team started with a strong showing against Chaminade University, beating them 4-0. They came out early, scoring in the ninth minute, thanks to a long distance shot from junior Alex Mangeac. Senior John Stump found the net twice, once on his own, and once through an assist from junior Ben Mangeac. Stump and Ben Mangeac connected again, setting freshman Evan Horwood with an assist. The Crusaders were dominant, outshooting Chaminade, 26-2.

The next day, the team lost to BYU-Hawaii, 4-1. Both teams came out firing, with BYU scoring early, followed a minute later by a NNU goal from freshman John DiLulo. NNU's quick retaliation was in turn followed up by another BYU goal a minute later, putting them up 2-1, a lead they would not lose. Despite the loss, the Crusaders held an advantage in shots, 10-8, but failed to connect.

"Hawaii has been a great trip," said junior Mitch Rice, "there has been a lot of bonding on

The trip has helped increase team chemistry, which Rice felt was "higher than it has ever been for us as a soccer team." Rice believes that the closeness will help the team be more competitive, "we should play more as a team and less as individuals."

This year, the Crusaders have added size to the roster. "The last few years we have always been a small team and we seemed to get pushed around for it. But, this year our incoming freshmen and our returners are getting a lot more aggressive and physical in practice, which transfers over to the games," said Rice.

These additions add onto a team that features two players who were named to GNAC honors last year, Renatto Brito and John Stump. Brito, now a senior, was named the GNAC Newcomer-of-the-Year, as well as making second team all-conference. Fellow senior, John Stump, was named honorable mention.

The team looks to build off their successful trip to Hawaii, and build a strong season. "We really want to make it to the post-season," said Rice. "Which means winning conference. It's a realistic goal if we stay strong and work together."

The Crusaders will take on College of Idaho this Friday, here at 6:00. They then start their GNAC season on the 23rd, when they face off against Western Washington at home.

beyond-Things to do:Part One

Now that week one activities are over, some freshmen (and returning students) might be asking themselves: what is there to do around this place? Take heart, the Treasure Valley is thriving, you just need to know where to look.

COFFEE

The Flying M Coffee Garage.
1314 2nd St. S., Nampa.
www.flyingmcoffee.com

Located less than two miles from campus, this coffee shop provides a reclusé for students to come and hang out, hold study sessions or grab a quick drink. The atmosphere is laid back with an eclectic feel. It's close to campus, so gas money should not be a problem. Several concerts are hosted here throughout the year. If you're in downtown Boise, check out the Flying M Coffee House on West Idaho Street.

Black Bear Coffee House

Find a cozy, cabin-in-the-woods atmosphere at this locally owned shop. There is plenty of table space, as well as peace and quiet, for those times when you need an escape to study, be alone or catch up with a friend. The service is extra-friendly, and you can opt for a blended drink, smoothie, or baked good.

Silver Bullet Espresso and Deli
215 1st Street S., Nampa
www.twicesoldtalesnampa.com/espresso.html

The Silver Bullet is still one of Nampa's hidden gems, but owner Angie Amstad is getting the word out that she offers delicious meals and drinks in the upstairs of Twice Sold Tails in Downtown Nampa. Come enjoy a Fifties café feel for a fun date with friends.

MOVIES

Reel Theatre.
2104 Caldwell Blvd., Nampa.
Two Boise locations.
www.reeltheatre.com

The "Reel," as NNUers affectionately call it, features Hollywood blockbusters a tad bit later than Edwards Cinemas, but it'll save ya about eight bucks! Movie tickets are only $2, or $1 at Midnight and on Tuesdays. However new freshman need to be careful when they see a midnight movie, curfew is at 2 a.m.!

Northern Lights Cinema Grill
1509 Caldwell Blvd., Nampa,
(in the Karcher Mall).

What's better than watching a $3 movie while eating a freshly cooked white chicken pizza or gourmet burger? Northern Lights, like the Reel, has cheap tickets, because it shows slightly older releases. The cinema contains plush theater chairs behind tables, where you can sit, relax and chow down!

The Flicks
646 Fulton St., Boise.
www.theflicksboise.com

The Flicks is known for showing independent films that sometimes fall just outside of the pop culture radar, but usually are more funny, meaningful and creative than mainstream movies. You can grab a meal or drink on your way in. Plus, students get a discount if you show your ID card.

Survey: less than half of college-aged Christians attend church

rbeers@nnu.edu

Some may think that students who choose to attend a Christian university would almost automatically attend church weekly. There is no arguing that some students do attend church routinely as a staple in their week, but there are others who feel differently towards church attendance.

"I feel that NNU students that have grown up attending church probably have a sense that it is important," said Michael Kipp, assistant professor of practical theology. "Those who have not attended church in the past may not understand the value."

According to a 2007 survey by LifeWay Research, featured in USA Today, "Seven in 10 Protestants ages 18 to 30 — both evangelical and mainline — who attended church regularly in high school said they quit attending by age 23. And 34 percent of those said they had not returned, even sporadically, by age 30. That means about one in four Protestant young people have left the church." In a 2010 survey of 1,200 18- to 29-year-olds, also done by LifeWay Research, 65 percent of self-proclaimed Christians "rarely or never attend worship services."

Megan Krebs, a freshman, believes in the importance of church attendance. "A person needs to have an active relationship with the Church, not a static one," she said.

Dr. Tom Oord, professor of theology and philosophy, said, "I think most students know that in theory attending church regularly is important, but in practice they may not be so faithful."

What keeps students from attending church? One factor may be the requirement to attend chapel and religion classes at NNU. Dan Benjamin, a junior, spends Sunday mornings recovering from a busy week, he said. While he believes church is a time to receive a purposeful message, he does not attend because "with chapel three times a week I feel like I receive three messages every week," he said.

Do chapel and theology classes replace the need for church attendance? Dr. Mark Maddix, dean of the Theology and Religion Department, doesn't think so. He stresses the importance of being involved with a church. "Even though NNU is a Christian university which provides chapel, Bible study groups, and religion classes that are very formative in a student's spiritual life, NNU does not replace the local Church. The local Church is still the primary avenue where the people of God center around Word and Table," Maddix said.

Another factor that may keep students from attending a church is the difficulty of finding the right fit. The idea of "church shopping" may overwhelm college students. It is difficult enough for some students to integrate successfully into college, balance school and a social life, and then address the intimidation of finding a church that fits them.

"I think it is hard for students to visit churches because many of them are larger than what they are used to. They often get lost in the crowd and don't get connected," Maddix said. "Maybe our churches need to be more intentional in finding ways to make (students) feel more welcomed and to provide opportunities for them to connect with others." But Maddix also places responsibility with the students. "After students have shopped around, they need to settle into a church where they can worship and participate in ministry," he said.

Chelsea Pounds, a freshman, attends church because "the Church is the body of Christ; it's a place where people are there for you. The Church is like a home where you grow and feel safe there."

Do Christian values need to be demonstrated in regular Sunday morning worship attendance? Is finding the right church complicated? Does size and forming personal connections impact your church attendance? Is chapel an effective substitute for church? Write to the Crusader regarding your church attendance conviction.

Freshere: A mesh of cross-dressers and super heroes

ahawn@nnu.edu

On Oct. 2, the annual talent show Freshere was thrown with a bang, ftang and all other colorful comic book onomatopoeias, courtesy of the sophomore class.

With the NNU Little Theater decked out to look like a mash-up between Gotham and Metropolis, a plethora of superheroes met the patrons of the event surrounding the crowd like a bizarre mix between the Justice League of America and bouncers for a Cher concert.

Once the show was underway, the audience was visually bombarded with everything from dancing and singing acts, to puppets performing Saturday Night Live material, to informative videos about the lesser-known miracles of Jesus. The hosts of the ceremony, Jessica Novello and Jared Trygg, did an excellent job of keeping the show moving along and improvised some of the best lines of the evening.

The acts ranged from the musically hilarious, with songs performed by Hilary Johnson, Jarrod Seckler and Kristen Parke, to the bizarre with Miller's trying to outdo his previous stunts by attempting to simultaneously snort two live goldfish. Eli Kamplain and Kyle Blaser reapplied their green and red make-up to sing a very special birthday song.

Probably one of the most encouraging things about the evening was that no matter what happened, whether there was a crackle in the sound system or a comment from the audience, those performing were confident enough in their actions to just continue or even crack jokes about the off-script action.

Dance numbers to songs that ranged from Shakira's "Waka Waka" to Bonnie Tyler's "I Need a Hero" provided endless entertainment. Sophomores Robby Skinner, Chris Peck and Brandon Snyder's dance to "Single Ladies" might have put Beyonce to shame.

The skits offered plenty of opportunities for the audience to get involved, as the crowd was lead in a group dance — excuse me, "rhythmic movement" — to DC Talk's "Jesus Freak."

The show ended with an awesome custom rendition of the evolution of dance that was a great finale to a thoroughly entertaining evening.

TWIRP: Opposites attracted a lot of attention

Rachel Beers

What do Elmer Fudd, a pirate, and a dentist have in common? They all joined a whole host of other random characters at the TWIRP events hosted by the Student Government Association on Oct. 22-23. With the theme “Opposites Attract,” Downtown Nampa was littered with couples ranging from jocks and nerds, to the birds and bees, and even the Boondock Saints made an appearance.

The first night of TWIRP (which stands for The Woman Is Required To Pay, since it is a girls-ask-guys event,) started off with a group-wide scavenger hunt that allowed TWIRP goers to get more familiar with the local Nampa area and its merchants. Some of the hot spots were Oopsy Daisy Floral, Twice Sold Tails and Antique Village.

Dinner was catered by the new pizzeria in downtown, The Messenger. Participants mixed and mingled over slices of pepperoni and artichoke, served by yours truly “Nathaniel Leslie” and our own “Gene Schandorff” (SGA President Preston O’malley and Alexa Murphy-Sweet in costume).

night’s next event — the production of “Jekyll and Hyde” — put on by the Music Theatre of Idaho at the Nampa Civic Center.

The evening wrapped up with glow stick games, snacks and a bonfire in Melba. David Webb, a junior, said, “The NNU community was really present with everyone out there.” A fireworks display officially ended the first day’s events. TWIRP goers went downtown Boise for evening #2. The night got started at the Egyptian Theater, where students were served Qdoba. At the Egyptian theater students watched the interactive murder mystery “Three Doors to Murder,” a performance put on by NNU Crew Productions. The audience was able to interact and predict the direction of the play. Humor was involved to keep the attitude of the night up.

Then it was time for a group photo on the Capitol Building steps. Students were given various props such as paper bags to draw face on and water noodles for use in the picture. It’s a memory to cherish for sure!

Timothy Vanderpool, a sophomore, said, “It’s been a fantastic time. I was really lucky to have my date ask me.”

Then, the favorite of many TWIRP goers, was “improv everywhere” in Downtown Boise. At 7:15 p.m., all the students began walking in slow motion. The looks received from passing pedestrians were priceless. Junior Brie Bermudez-Koch said, “The funniest part was when someone asked me if when I fell if I feel in slow motion too!”

The Discovery Center was the next stop in the night’s activities. Students were able to explore the center, which was only open to NNU, for two hours. Last stop and keeping right in track with TWIRP tradition was a dollar movie, where students could choose between “Despicable Me,” “Toy Story 3” and “Inception.”

Get to know NNU's first lady, Sandy Alexander

NNU's president, Dr. David Alexander, is well known around campus, but what do we know his wife, Sandy? I had the privilege of sitting down with Mrs. Alexander to ask her a few questions so we would know more about her, her walk with Christ and her vision for NNU – and maybe a couple things about Dr. Alexander.

Sandy Alexander was raised in Torrance, Calif. Attending Point Loma Nazarene University, she earned her degree in education and child development. Sandy met NNU's president, known then just as David, in college, where they traveled on a summer ministry team. "He asked me out on a 'friend date', and half way through the summer he told me we were more than friends. We have been together ever since — and that was our sophomore year."

She graduated and became a devoted school-teacher until she and Dr. Alexander moved to Idaho to start his career at NNU as a member of the Music Department in 1986. When asked if she envisioned her life as being that of a university president's wife she said, "No, I thought I was marrying a band director."

The Alexander's have two children: Matt, 30, and Amy, 28. Mrs. Alexander says she has two and a third grandchildren. Two girls who are well-loved and another one who is on the way to being so.

When asked what she enjoys doing in her infrequent free time, she said, "I enjoy playing the piano and experimenting with recipes."

God is essential in Sandy's life. When asked what God is doing in her personally, she said, "It's a whole new journey for me, one of becoming the wife of a university president. I am no longer an anonymous devoted teacher." She added, "I am sometimes surprised with what I say yes to nowadays. God has taught me so much about prayer and to just slow down and listen to Him."

Our First Lady cherishes many Scripture promises that frequently provide her perspective, comfort and support. Her special favorites include Colossians 5:3, the books of Ephesians, Romans 8 and the Psalms.

In discussing NNU as an institution, Mrs. Alexander would like to take a class from Diane Leclerc or Brent Peterson, who both teach in the religion department. Professors that encourage students to be Christ in their world are attractive to her. Sandy encourages students to strive to be Jesus to people and to get connected to their local church. We are called to be God's servants to nonbelievers, she said. "Don't sit back and be someone who is not involved, go be a doer," she advises.

When asked what she would do if she could change one thing about NNU, Sandy said, "How do you make a place perfect for everyone?" She genuinely believes in NNU, adding, "I don't think I would change anything about it."

For young NNU campus females with their unfolding futures ahead, she would emphasize that they can do whatever they want to do. "Young women don't have to just grow up and have children. That's how it used to be. Just stay true to God! That is the most important thing. After that everything else will fall into place," she said.

"It is fun," to be the wife of the NNU president, Sandy said. "We are so busy. We try to be with so many groups." It is a "precious honor" to be on campus with students, she said, and something that is humbling never taken for granted.

Since she knows our president better than anyone else, I was curious to know some of Dr. Alexander's less obvious characteristics or proclivities. Mrs. Alexander kindly indulged us with a few publicly permissible presidential habits.

She said on vacations, Dr. Alexander insists on buying junk food. Potato chips and nuts to be exact. "He never is satisfied without them," she said. He also has suppressed obsessions about his favorite sports team, The LA Lakers. "He can't watch them play because he just paces until the game is over," Sandy said.

Insights into our First Lady prove her to be a warm, concerned, interesting and approachable godly woman who really loves and supports NNU.

2010 highlights from our world and Nation

As every year does, 2010 came to an end in true style. It was a year when we saw change in ourselves, the people around us, at NNU, in the United States, and around the world. Here's a look at what happened in 2010:

WORLD HIGHLIGHTS

Haiti Earthquake, Jan. 12

A devastating 7.0 earthquake struck Haiti, the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere, on Jan. 12. The epicenter was just 10 miles out of the capital city, Port-au-Prince. According to Yahoo News, because of virtually no building regulations, buildings toppled "like paper." The death toll was estimated at 250,000 people, who either died in the initial earthquake, or in hospitals from secondary diseases or dehydration.

The news of Haiti did not die quickly. It was re-ignited when a small group of Americans were caught trying to take 33 children out of the Haiti to an orphanage in the Dominican Republic.

The leader of the group, an Idahoan named Laura Silsby, stayed in the Haitian jail for over 100 days, the longest out of the other 10 group members. The charge against her of kidnapping was dropped, but she was convicted of arranging illegal travel, the Idaho Statesman said.

Americans raised $61 million during a Hope for Haiti telethon, and the American Red Cross raised $461 million by October. But by the end of 2010, Haiti is nowhere near rebuilt. It will take a lot of work in 2011 for the country to see any stabilization again.

Guatemala Sinkhole, May 30

Although not as well known to some, Guatemala experienced a world phenomenon. A perfectly round sinkhole, 66 feet wide and 100 feet deep, opened up in the middle of an intersection. "The crater formed overnight, stunning scientists and riveting people, as the gaping maw grew large enough to swallow up a three-story clothing factory," said Yahoo News.

Sinkholes are caused by underground water that weakens the bedrock. Some claimed it to be a broken sewage pipe that had invaded the bedrock, while others said there was absolutely no way this could have been the cause.

Winter Olympics, Feb. 12-28

The XXI Olympic Winter Games in Vancouver, BC. started out as what some would consider a disaster: the death of Georgian luge competitor Nodar Kumaritashvili in a training run before the Olympics began, not enough snow for skiing, and then an abundance of snow, shortly followed by the malfunction of the torch at the opening ceremonies, and finally the breaking of an ice machine which delayed the long-track speed skating event. Despite this, the games continued as usual. "Approximately 2,600 athletes from 82 nations participated in 86 events in 15 disciplines," said the NY Daily News.

Canada finally got its hand on gold, after not receiving any in the two previous Olympics held in Canada. They also got the gold medal they most desired in over-time against the United States in Ice Hockey.

The United States, Germany and Canada pulled ahead with the most medals, with 37, 30 and 26 per country, respectively. Canada earned 14 gold medals, more than any other country in this Olympics; Germany won 10 gold medals, and the United States tied with Norway at nine.

Apolo Ohno also became the most decorated American in Winter Olympic history, winning eight medals in his career.

Chilean miners, Aug. 5 - Oct. 13

On Aug. 5, 33 Chilean miners were trapped 2,300 feet below ground in a gold and silver mine. For 17 days, crews worked to gain information about their situation. On Aug. 22, a note came back notifying the crews that the miners were still alive.

They created a hole that was big enough to send food, water, clothes, and medicine down to the trapped men. They also sent down a small video camera so they could stream live and talk to their families.

Angela Thompson
athompson@nnu.edu

One miner's daughter was born while he was trapped. He was able to watch the whole thing live. Her name was to be Carolina, but he asked them to change it to Esperanza, meaning Hope.

On Oct. 13, Yahoo News reported, "Journalists descended on the site as the hour grew near, and more than 3,000 people gathered to watch the rescue on giant TV monitors in the nearby provincial capital, Copiapo, hometown of most of the miners. Millions more watched worldwide on TV or online." Each miner was brought up in a capsule to safety wearing sunglasses donated by Oakley. The 33 miners were all treated and are safe back at home.

Greece Debt Crisis

As of March, Greece's national debt at $413.6 billion (€300 billion), more than the country's economy. "Years of unrestrained spending, cheap lending and failure to implement financial reforms left Greece badly exposed when the global economic downturn struck," CNN reported on March 26. The debt threatened other countries' economies and the value of the euro.

UNITED STATES HIGHLIGHTS

Oil Spill, April 20 - July 15

The oil spill, the largest one in the gulf since 1979, started on April 20 at the Deepwater Horizon, an oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico. Eleven workers went missing and were later announced dead. This was soon overlooked as the threat of a catastrophic oil spill started, stated Yahoo News.

The American public was by no means happy with BP for what seemed to be a lack of organization and initiative in the process. "By June, the public anger against BP and its bumbling CEO reached a crescendo and was mercilessly parodied," said Yahoo News. In July, BP finally secured a cap on the gushing oil, but after months, the oil's toll on the surface was apparent. "By November, most of the gulf was open for fishing, but worrying signs of deep-sea damage — such as a die-off of bottom-dwelling coral — warned of many uncertainties ahead," reported Yahoo News. The spill covered more than 4,000 square miles of ocean surface. More than 4 million barrels of oil leaked into the Gulf of Mexico before the leak was fixed.

Military Operations

On June 23, President Obama removed Gen. Stanley A. McChrystal as military commander in Afghanistan because he had "badly damaged the chain of command and could no longer work effectively with the civilian leadership at a crucial moment in the war," said the Washington Post. Gen. David Petraeus, who had served as commander in Iraq, replaced him. McChrystal had served in the army for 34 years.

After seven years of combat operations in Iraq and a bill around $1 trillion, the United States withdrew the remainder of combat troops on Aug. 31. President Obama told the Associated Press that the removal of troops was not a sign of a "victory lap," and the United States still had much work to do to ensure that Iraq will be an "effective partner with us." The war was launched to remove former Iraqi president Saddam Hussein and enforce a democratic government. More than 4,400 U.S. soldiers and 100,000 Iraqi civilians lost their lives as a result of the operation. "Now that the Iraq war is over - for US combat troops, at least - only one thing is clear about the outcome: We didn't win," the Washington Post said on Sept. 1.

Recession

Although not starting in 2010, a major part of many of our lives was the constant reminders of the recession, although statistics showed that it was a year of improvement in many ways. Though reported to be over as of June, the wounds from the recession still penetrated many Americans.

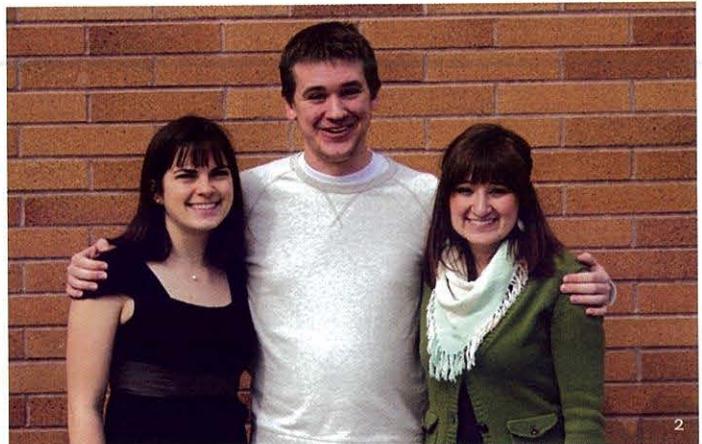

"The fear that the next paycheck could be the last one is rampant and not wholly unfounded," reported Yahoo News.

Health Care Bill, March 21

After a monumental election in 2008, Obama set forth to hold up his campaign ad by reforming health care for America. In 2010, a bill was passed that would provide the opportunity for all Americans to experience health care coverage. This bill, expected to cost around $900 billion dollars, is still on the forefront of debate going into 2011. On Jan. 19 of this year, the House passed legislation to repeal the health care law, 245-189. "Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., has vowed to block the measure, and Obama has threatened to veto it," USA Today reported that same day.

Oasis

In keeping with the 2009-10 Oasis staff's efforts to improve the lackluster reputation of the Oasis, we wanted to present a yearbook that is memorable—in a good way—and a book that people look forward to receiving at the close of the school year. This fine product was put together under the tutelage of Oasis Editor-in-Chief Shanae Galloway. A compendium of the year's happening at NNU, Oasis is your link to NNU long after the 2010-2011 year has passed, so that your bright and shining face will live on when your college days are gone.
