"For unto us a Child is born"

Christmas

Christmas for many people is only a holiday instead of a holy day. Even the holiday is sometimes characterized by some of the most unholy things that are practiced at any time during the year. The person who drinks whiskey usually drinks more at Christmas time than at any other time; the person who drives recklessly generally drives more recklessly at Christmas time than at any other season; the person who spends money extravagantly will spend even more extravagantly at Christmas than at any other time of the year. Some of us should do our best to balance this spirit of recklessness at the Christmas season.

The birth of our nation is celebrated by the firing of cannons and shooting of firecrackers which is dangerous, but at least it is reasonably appropriate because the birth of our nation was associated with war. But the birth of Jesus should be celebrated in ways that make for peace and happiness and not war and strife. Jesus came to bring peace on earth and good will toward men. Surely it would seem to be appropriate to celebrate His birth by doing the things that Jesus did.

It is significant that we give gifts at this time of the year because Jesus made possible the greatest of all gifts—salvation from sin. We place our gifts on a tree—God sent His only son into the world that He might freely give His life on the cross-tree. Happiness, peace and contentment are appropriate at Christmas time because Jesus is the Prince of Peace. At this holy season of the year such things as revelry, frivolity and wastefulness should have no place in the lives of His followers for these things are not in keeping with His teachings.

—President A. B. Mackey

A Cappella Choir Sings At Base

The A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Professor Ramon Unruh, made its third public appearance off the campus at Clarksville Base recently. The scene of the performance was the chapel inside the "Bird Cage." The Navy provided transportation both ways and following the program dinner was served at the "mess" hall.

The forty-five minute program included eight numbers, by the choir and two numbers each by the two traveling ladies trios. The group was well received by those present and an invitation by the chaplain was given for a return engagement.

"The Lost Star" Presented December 4

"The Lost Star" by Dorothy Wilson, is the title of the play which was presented Friday night, December 4 at the annual Christmas program. It is the story of three Magi that set out to follow the star that would lead to the King. The youngest of the three is Balthasar who was the main character of the story. He was played by Paul Jackson. The other two were played by Gene Cook and Keith Silvernail. Mrs. Mabel Green directed the play.

The mass choir, made up of the A Cappella, Girls' Chorus, Men's Chorus, and the High School Choir presented the numbers between the

Dr. and Mrs. Mackey Have Open House November 7, 8

Annually the President and First Lady of our college invite the faculty and students to be their guests at open house. This year the occasion was looked forward to with much anticipation for everyone was to get his first glimpse of the inside of the President's new home.

On Saturday evening, November 7, one hundred and thirty guests were greeted personally by Dr. and Mrs. Mackey. Guided tours through the beautiful spacious eight-room house were conducted by members of the Junior Class, sponsor of the occasion. The various items of information given about each room and its furnishings added interest to the tours.

On Sunday afternoon, November 15, the Mackeys entertained members of the Nazarene churches in Nashville. Approximately one hundred and sixty came to the occasion sponsored by the Senior Class. Mrs. Mackey said that between four and five hundred have come to see their home since its completion.

Nativity Scene

On Thanksgiving evening the Nativity scene at the Parthenon was lighted for the first time this year. This scene, a gift to the city by Fred Harvey, is a complete picture story of the birth of Christ. It is put up each year at about the same time and additions are made each year by Mr. Harvey. Multicolored lights shine on the scene as Christmas carols are played in the back-ground.

The Nativity scene is a "must" for all who visit Nashville during the Christmas season. It provides a serious time of meditation as one looks on. Students should not leave Nashville for the holidays until they have visited this city "wonder."

episodes of the play. Included in these selections were "Glory to God," "Brightest and Best of Sons," "A Star in the East," "We Three Kings," and the "Hallelujah Chorus." The choir was directed by Professor Unruh and accompanied by Miss Barbara McClain. Professor Hammond and Professor Unruh also gave solo numbers.

Others included in the cast were Shirley Bula, Mary Jane Still, Eugene Campbell, Ann Fleming, Ed Allred, Jack Farrish, James Van Hook, Ruth Shannon, Jerry Wheeler, Jerry Andrews, Bess Pearson, Judith Parrish, and Sue Hayes.

The program was sponsored by the combined Music and Speech Clubs.

Christmas Party Sponsored by Freshmen

A joyous yuletide was extended to everyone by the Freshman Class which traditionally sponsored the Christmas party December 11, 1959. Many enthusiastic students bustled about for several days, full of the Christmas spirit and secretly planning for the best celebration ever.

The theme of the party was "Winter Wonderland," and the cafeteria resembled a Christmas card as it shone with silver and blue decorations. Probably the most unusual attraction was the artificial snowman which welcomed guests at the entrance of the cafeteria.

An interesting part of the program was a play about a family celebrating the season on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, and the wonderment of the children opening gifts. Some of the main characters were portrayed by Jack Farrish, Judy Woodard, Judy Miley, Pat Mercer, and Douglas Askew. The setting was a window of the home through which the audience could look in on the family.

Carolers then appeared singing the Christmas carols and bringing Santa on a sleigh. Gifts were then exchanged and refreshments served.

Harold Derryberry Expresses Appreciation

Harold Derryberry, president of the Ministerial Association, extends appreciation for the hearty response given to the Thanksgiving offering.

Under the sponsorship of the Ministerial Association, pledges were made in chapel and ample opportunity was given to everyone who wished to contribute.

Many pledges have been paid, bringing the amount to $433.54. Other contributions are adding to this amount.

"Our Town" Presented At Scarritt College

"Our Town" was the name of the popular modern play by Wilder which members of the Speech Club went to see and were so excited about. The play was presented on November 19 by the Scarritt College players who are known for their dramatic abilities.

It was given in the form of "drama in the round," a method in which the spectators sit on three sides of the room on a platform or on the main floor. The action takes place in the center of the main floor without a stage and the players use very few props.

Seniors Direct Thanksgiving Banquet

The words of Joshua, "But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord," were the theme of the annual Thanksgiving Banquet sponsored by the Senior Class and held in the college cafeteria, November 21.

The decorations were in keeping with this season of the year. A beautiful arrangement of bronze and white chrysanthemums were placed on the organ. The centerpieces for the tables were baby pumpkins with an arrangement of red and green peppers, squash, hickory nuts, and apples. Orange candles and leaves completed the table decorations.

At the center of the cafeteria, a Puritan family was seated on log benches around an old-fashioned table. Directly behind them was a large chalk drawing of the first Thanksgiving days and from the lights the theme in golden letters, "But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

The program was arranged to encourage group participation and as everyone came together the group sang, "We Gather Together."

Rev. T. E. Jones, pastor of College Hill Church, gave the invocation.

A mixed quartet then sang, "Come Ye Thankful People."

"God of Our Fathers," "America the Beautiful," and "Faith of our Fathers," were rendered beautifully by an instrumental trio.

A reading by Joyce Woodward entitled "The Thanksgiving Feast" encouraged the group to let Christ come into their hearts to be their Guest.

Thirty-six colored slides were shown to tell the story of the first Thanksgiving. The group was reminded of God's bountiful blessings on each of their lives and in recognizing this they sang the "Doxology" after which Dr. Mackey pronounced the benediction.

Music and Speech Department Have Joint Recital

Members of the Music and Speech Departments practice diligently preparing for their joint public recital each quarter. The first Fine Arts presentation was Friday, November 20.

Performing on the first program were: Dennis Hage, Frances Howick, Joe Moses, Phyllis Lobb, and Donald Eads, vocalists; Linda Pierce, Marquita Thomas, Mary Beth Richardson, Brenda Reynolds, and Ann Bohannon, pianists; Hilda Kea and Janet Willis, organists; Ann Fleming and Ruth Shannon, readers. Chopin, Bach, Mozart, Massenet, Speaks, Frost, Scott, Bell, and Gartlin were the composers of the numbers performed.

The Symbol of Hope

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men."

Over two thousand years ago in Bethlehem of Judea, a Babe was born of humble heritage. But wait, this was no ordinary child, for this Baby brought with Him hope to a lost world—my hope and your hope.

Once again the Christmas holidays are upon us and we are reminded of the birthday of the Christ Child, Jesus. In the hustle, bustle, and tension of the busy days ahead may we not forget the one true meaning of Christmas.

Every Christmas a hope is born, a hope like a shining star which becomes the finger of God pointing to the future. Though our future may seem dark, the only darkness we need fear is the darkness within. Christ came to take this darkness from our lives. So let us not cry out in despair, "Look what the world has come to," but rather let us lift up our hearts in joyous praise to God and cry, "Look Who has come to the world!"

Christmas is a day of happiness; a day of rejoicing—it is the BIRTHDAY OF OUR SAVIOUR! Since it is His birthday, Christ should have gifts, but as these gifts He wants our lives and our talents.

Let us forget the cares, the worries, and the problems of the world and enter into the holidays with thanksgiving and praise in our hearts to the Babe of long ago for He is our strength, our fortress, our bulwark—and our hope. Let us say with Isaiah of old, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."

Nashville Symphony Presents Concert

Jennie Tourel, proclaimed by Virgil Thomson as "unequaled among living singers," was the mezzo soprano soloist in the second concert presented by the Nashville Symphony Orchestra December 1, at the War Memorial Auditorium.

Under the direction of Willis Page, the orchestra did an excellent job in presenting one of the greatest concert overtures, the "Overture to Tannhauser."

Two of Jennie Tourel's songs were taken from the opera, "The Marriage of Figaro." Miss Tourel is Russian by birth but American by adoption. She began singing when only a year old. Though well on her way to a career as concert pianist she was persuaded by a friend to study voice seriously. A few years later she received a contract with the Paris Opera-Comique. She also premiered Leonard Bernstein's "Jeremiah Symphony" with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Good Literature Is Important

Have you ever stopped to consider the importance of reading good literature? Literature is a valuable asset to anyone's life and particularly to the Christian's life. What we read and absorb in our mind leaves an indelible imprint on us for the rest of our lives.

Our own church affords us the privilege of choosing good Christian literature. The Conquest Magazine, published by the Nazarene Publishing House, is the official magazine of our Nazarene Young People's Society. Some of the articles printed in this inspiring magazine have excellent value.

The Nazarene Publishing House also gives us the Herald of Holiness which provides encouragement to many Christians. If you wish to follow a pattern in your daily devotions, the Come Ye Apart will give this to you. In order to be consistent with Bible reading, one should follow a guide.

There are many good Christian novels which are available to us. The importance of Christian fiction in a person's life is high. The kind of literature that you read will also reflect the type of person that you are. It may influence our lives and perhaps the lives of others even though we may not realize it at the time.

The Story of Trevecca

Trevecca owes its existence to consecrated men and women who have supported it with both prayers and finances. Trevecca was organized in order to prepare young men and women who were planning to enter full-time Christian service.

At a time when the Lord needed someone most, one of the great holiness leaders arose. Rev. J. O. McClurkan received a call to preach and followed that call faithfully until the end of his life here on earth.

He definitely felt the need for young people to be educated. He established a Literary and Bible Training School about 1901. It was located on what is now known as Fifth and Jo Johnson.

In 1910 Rev. McClurkan saw the need for changing the Bible school into a college so it could best serve the educational needs in the future.

When he saw the comparison between the English college, Trevecca, and the institution here, he decided to call the school Trevecca.

In 1911 a charter was drawn up along with the drawing of a new curriculum.

A piece of property, known as the Warner Estate, was purchased in 1914. It consisted of eighty-six acres in east Nashville on Gallatin Road between what is now West Douglas and West Cahal, and it was purchased by the school for $75,000.

On this property was an old colonial mansion that served as the main building for the school.

The front fifteen acres comprised the campus while the remainder was divided into lots and called "Trevecca Subdivision." The front half was admired by students, visitors on the campus and by those who only passed by. It was well shaded by groves of trees and was secluded from the rush of city life.

Rev. McClurkan faithfully labored during the summer of 1914 in order to complete a boys dormitory by the time school opened.

In the late summer he died a premature death, being only in his fifties.

Dr. C. E. Hardy was chosen as the next president of Trevecca College.

Morning Devotions

Soft organ music adds to the worshipful atmosphere of the early morning prayer meetings sponsored by the Freshman Class. These prayer meetings, which began November 16, are informal. Everyone is invited to go and pray at any time between 7:30 and 7:50 any week-day morning.

There are other good novels which may not have a Christian emphasis as the basis for writing, and these should be chosen carefully.

Christians, be particular about what you read. The Bible is the greatest piece of literature ever to be written—let it be your first choice and let any other type of literature be appropriate to your life as a Christian.

Fine Arts Department Presents Series Of Chapel Services

A series of four chapel services following the Thanksgiving holidays were under the direction of the Fine Arts Department. It was a week of inspiration and blessing.

On Tuesday Professor Unruh had charge of the service and used different types of church music for congregational singing. Some of these were songs of praise, of inspiration, of meditation and invitation. Professor Unruh sang special songs representing each division.

Mrs. Greene and the Speech Department were in charge on Wednesday. Selected students from the oral communication classes gave a scripture reading on the birth and death of Christ. Bess Pearson sang a special song and a men's quartet sang "Were You There" as Mrs. Greene gave parts of two poems, "Crucify" and "Lonesome Jesus."

Miss McClain was in charge on Thursday and the program was centered around the Christian life. For the congregational singing less well known hymns were used. The program included piano solos by Ann Bohannon, and Sylvia Young; vocal solos by Don Eads, Joe Moses, Betty Helms, Bess Pearson, and Dennie Hage. James VanHook played a trumpet solo accompanied by Ann Bohannon. The men's quartet and a ladies' trio concluded the program.

On Friday the chapel service concluded the week's special emphasis. John T. Benson, Jr. was the special speaker and told of the history of his printing company which specializes in printing and composing songs for our Nazarene hymnals. John T. Benson Printing Co. is also known as one of the largest school yearbook publishers. He emphasized strongly the importance of music in our religious lives and gave some of the techniques of song composition.

Works of Wesley Donated by Dr. Miller

A fourteen-volume set of The Works of John Wesley, which is the first reprint for almost a hundred years, can be found in Trevecca's library. The collection contains Wesley's comments on more than four thousand subjects, hundreds of personal letters, his complete journal, practical homiletical pointers, scores of addresses, valuable counsel for workers, and a gold mine of sermonic resources.

Reproduction was by the photo offset process from the authorized edition, published by the Wesleyan Conference office in London, England, in 1872.

Since the church of the Nazarene believes largely in Wesley's teaching, the Nazarene Publishing House in Kansas City, Missouri, realized the necessity for a reprint.

Dr. Nettie A. Miller, a native of Columbus, Georgia, a graduate of Trevecca, and a Nazarene evangelist, has donated this collection to our library.

C.W.A. REPORTS

Martha Gray

"And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger."

What a story! Is it any wonder that the song written said, "O night divine; O night when Christ was born"? How it thrills the heart of each of us as we think of the miracle which took place on that night so many years ago, and yet still takes place in the heart of man today.

As we enter the Christmas season, may we again visit the manger, and then go out and tell the world of this wonderful Saviour who was born to bring peace and forgiveness to the hearts of men. May we take to them the wonderful message which the angels proclaimed on that first Christmas night, the message of the Son of God who came to dwell among men; who came for the sole purpose of redeeming man. In the words of Isaiah, may we proclaim to them the message that "unto us a child is born; unto us a son is given . . . and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father."

—Martha Gray

Spiritual Terminology

The students and faculty of Trevecca are accustomed to a terminology that may seem foreign to those who are not experienced in the use of Christian expressions.

The use of this terminology with its references to the Lord and to spiritual things is a mark of the Christian. At Trevecca, with its spiritual emphasis, we are met often with its use. It is a welcome sound compared with the conversations heard elsewhere and in different company.

With the frequency of the use of this spiritual terminology, there also comes a danger. First, it may become rather commonplace and unfortunately lose some of its meaning. The precaution to be taken is not to exclude or even to cut down on spiritual references, but to give each reference serious consideration.

The subsequent danger is the tendency to make light of that which has become too commonplace.

As has been stated, this can be prevented. There are guards to be set. One important guard is prayer; another is care. With the Lord's guidance and careful speech, Trevecca's conversation may be preserved as the comfort and encouragement it can be for those who are not accustomed to talking with Christian young people.

Isaiah 9:6

"For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon His shoulder; and His Name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace."

Shannon's Sidelines

How many have heard the story about the car of sleeping beauties that passed a couple on their way home to South Carolina during the holidays? Bob Mitchell can narrate this fairy tale fully.

With appreciation a group of fan club members dedicate the song, "Beautiful Brown Eyes," to Wendell Poole.

Jo Ann Smith can give you some household advice about how to keep your throw rugs from slipping on waxed floors. Ask her for the details.

Congratulations to those for whom the wedding bells rang during the Thanksgiving holidays: Joyce Woodward and Harold Hughes; Ruth High and John DeBoer.

How many law-abiding citizens do we have? You might watch for those who go the right way on our one-way street to see who fits this category.

Sammy Phipps has a fancy idea for a hair style. He places his customer in front of an electric fan and then begins placing bobby pins at random in the hair. I think a most fitting name is "The Hurricane Sweep."

Linda Pierce played a relatively new piece for a studio recital recently. The title was "Chopin" by Prelude. (Mr. Prelude is a newcomer to the music field.)

Lorraine Murray has a most difficult thing to do every morning—get up. She usually arises ten minutes before class time. But an unusual thing occurred not long ago—she was up and dressed by 7:30, due to the fact that someone looked at the clock wrong.

PARTING THOUGHT: When driving on your way home for the holidays, drive as if you own the car . . . not the road.

First Impressions of Trevecca

As we drove up the driveway late one night, I remember getting quite a thrill and feeling quite proud when I saw the Trevecca Nazarene College sign overhead, just to think that was the college where I would be spending the next four years of my life. I didn't form many impressions that first night as it was dark, and I was so thrilled about seeing my girl friend with whom I had been in school in Africa for five years. I remember meeting some of the girls and thinking how friendly they all were.

To me it was not only getting used to college life, but also the American ways, as this is my first visit to America. Things were so different, ways were different, accents different, and I just didn't feel right here. I think my first opinions must have been based on these different things because I just didn't like it here.

I was very impressed with the buildings and I thought the campus was beautiful. Different members of the faculty were very kind to me in those first few days, and I knew I was going to like them, but even all this didn't help and more than once I wished I had never come to Trevecca.

In school I found the ways of teaching were different from the ways to which I had been accustomed; lessons were different and students didn't seem the same either.

I think the thing that impressed me most was the Christian spirit around the campus, the Christian fellowship and the Christian activities.

My opinion has changed a lot since then. Even though I would love to go back to Africa, I don't think I would go now even if I had the opportunity. Because this is the place where God wants me to be and I love Trevecca. I can truthfully say "Dear old T. N. C."

—Deidre Jones

File Thirteen

File Thirteen is a very important one around a college campus. It can be found in many places.

First of all you will see it in every dormitory room, or at least you should. We place all "excellent" test papers here.

You can see File Thirteen in every classroom. Who would think of conducting a class without it? Sometimes the professor may be tempted to store his lecture here. It has been proved the best place on campus to hide your love notes and past due assignments.

There are several sections of our file on the grounds of the campus. Look them up and avail yourself of their service.

Campus Improvements

Trevecca is continually striving to make its campus beautiful. The latest major undertaking by the school is the painting of McKay Hall, a red brick building being used as a girls dormitory. As the painters move around the building, painting and trimming as they go, we can see that the finished product will be well worth the time and effort invested in this latest project. Earlier this year the outside of Hardy Hall and the cafeteria were painted gray, which added greatly to the general appearance of the campus.

Standard Bearers

A standard is a figure chosen as an emblem by the people. The standard of the Romans was an eagle. The man who carried the eagle was an officer and an important person. He was called the standard bearer. When going into battle he held the standard high, and, if he fell, the nearest soldier would grab the standard and hold it high. The standard must not fall, for this would be a sign of defeat.

A standard is also a rule by which to measure. We as holiness people have rules by which to measure ourselves. It may be hard work, but it is not a drudgery to serve the Lord in holiness. We are honored to be selected by God to

The Christmas Story

Behold the words of the prophet of old,

"A virgin shall bring forth a Son

And call His name Emmanuel,
'God with us,' the holy One."

In the days of Herod, king of Judea,
An angel appeared to one

Who was virtuous and told her that God would send her a Son.

"Hail, Mary! Blessed art thou
Among the women of earth:

For thou shalt bear the Son of God,
And all shall hear of His birth."

"His name shall be Jesus, descendant of David.

His Son our God shall send.

He shall reign over the house of Jacob;

Of His kingdom there is no end."

An humble virgin, Mary, became
The mother of our Lord.

Nothing shall be impossible with God

For those who believe His Word.

She wrapped her Son in swaddling clothes

There in the stable lowly.

The innkeeper gave them no room for he Knew not the Babe was holy.

Wise men came to worship Him,
Following the star.

They brought rich gifts to Him of gold,

Frankincense, and myrrh.

Guided by angels the shepherds came.

The angels announced His birth:

"Glory to God in the highest and Good will and peace on earth."

And so a Saviour came to earth
To be the suffering Christ.

Let all the people praise and serve
The One in heaven the highest.

Hardy Hall Has Open House

"Silver Bells, Silver Bells"—The girls in Hardy Hall sang or hummed this song for several days before December 5, because it was the theme of their open house on that date.

First on the list of the night's festivities was a program in the Fine Arts auditorium composed mainly of a Christmas film entitled "The Guiding Star." There was also soft organ music as a prelude to the film.

Directly after the program Hardy's doors were opened to the guests who came in and viewed the girls' rooms and Miss Peery's apartment. Upon leaving they were served punch and cookies in the counseling room. The decorations in the dormitory carried out very well the theme of the evening.

carry high standards. We must not fall to defeat. Do not let your standard slip. Live close to God. We are standard bearers. Jesus said, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men to me." Lift up a standard for the people.

Mrs. Lillian Pickett Is Honor Student

Mrs. Lillian Pickett, originally from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, is one of TNC's honor students. She has "broken the curve" in many a class. While here she is majoring in education and psychology and minoring in English. Teaching in the elementary grades is in her plans for the future.

Besides being a full-time student, Mrs. Pickett is a wife and mother. The Picketts have been married fourteen years, and have an eight-year-old daughter named Karen, who attends Woodbine Elementary School. She and her husband Arthur, who is a part time student here, are co-pastors of the Highland Church of the Nazarene. The Picketts are purchasing a house in Nashville and plan to make their home here.

When asked what her hobbies are, she said, "My family."

Happy New Year!

Staff Extends Season's Greetings

Season's greetings are extended to the faculty, the student body, and other friends by the Trev- Echoes staff and advisors: Mrs. K. W. Phillips, Mr. V. Neil Richardson, Pat Jones, Joe Moses, Doris Sweeney, Jo Ann Smith, Martha Gray, Ruth Shannon, Charles Kirby, Shirley Bula, Chloe Combs, Sarah Culpepper, Marilyn Foskey, Earl Frye, Rosalie Gardner, Kenneth Heaton, Louise Irwin, Charlene Knox, Dwayne Little, Phyllis Lobb, Linda Pierce, Mary Beth Richardson, Joyce Shaw, Phyllis Sark, Mary Jane Still, and Jeanette Willis.

Christmas Tree

As a project of the high school senior class the annual Christmas tree was placed by the flag pole in the center of the campus. This class decorated the tree with multi-colored lights. In the evenings these lights add cheer and color to the campus. All who pass the tree are reminded of this "special" season of the year.

The Week Before Christmas

'Twas the week before Christmas and all through the dorm,
All the girls were excited and no one was forlorn.
The suitcases were packed on the floors with great care,
In hopes that the taxis soon would be there.

The students were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of families danced in their heads.
"Mom" in her kerchief and I in my cap,
Had just settled down for a pre-holiday nap.

When out on the campus there arose such a fuss,
I sprang from my bunk and said, "What's happening to us?"
Away to my window I flew in a flash,
Tore open the shade and threw up the sash.

Then what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a little green Plymouth coming real near.
With a big old driver so lively and fancy,
I knew in a moment it must be Wayne Clancy.

More rapid than eagles his feet they came
As he shouted and hollered and called them by name:
"Now Carol and Leslie; now Lawrence and Jenny,
Now Joan and Bruce; now Ann and Denny,

To McKay and Hardy and Tidwell Hall,
Now run away, run away, run away all!"
So away to the dorms their feet all flew,
With a few good-nights and some good-byes, too.

And then in a moment I heard on the step,
The yelling and screaming of the girls crying, "Help!"
As I drew in my head and was turning around,
From her apartment came "Mom" running with a bound.

She was dressed all in nightclothes from her head to her foot,
And her hair looked as if it had never been put.
A bundle of light checks she had clutched in her hand
And her heart was beating like a fast moving band.

The time, as she glanced, said 11 o'clock,
As she picked up the key that would open the lock.
She opened the door and the girls she then sought.
They tried not to let her know they had been caught.

She was frightened; a right worried dorm mother,
And the girls, when they saw her, just gazed at one another.
The look in her eye and the shake of her head,
Soon let the girls know there was trouble ahead.

She spoke not a word but went straight to her work
And filled out the light checks then turned with a jerk,
And pointing her finger into each girl's face,
She assured them right then that she'd tend to their case.

She turned to her room and the girls looked away;
Then they all flew upstairs, having nothing to say.
But I heard "Mom" exclaim as she turned out her light,
"They're just excited 'cause it's almost Christmas night."

Chatter Box

By Charles Kirby

The football season has come to an end, and it has been one of the best in T.N.C.'s history. The season officially ended with a championship game between the two top running teams, the Alphas and the Deltas, who were deadlocked in a first-place tie. This championship game was, perhaps, the best played game of the year. It saw the Alphas come from behind and capture their second straight championship.

GRADUATING SENIORS

The Deltas are the only team losing players this year by graduation. They will miss the long range passing arm of Quarterback Gene Reynolds and the good all-around play of End Paul Jackson. The Alphas and Betas retain their entire squad and should be even more powerful next year.

We would like to thank everyone who has been a football booster this season and urge you to continue on with your support throughout the coming basketball and softball seasons.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

We trust that everyone will have a wonderful vacation and a very Merry Christmas. We hope Santa will be good to you all. In the midst of the hustle and bustle of the holiday season, remember to keep Christ in your Christmas.

Science Club Activities

The Science Club is really on the ball! From October 26 through 30 club members enjoyed the film, "Ranch of the Purple Flowers" and then on November 16 "Return to Africa." Both were shown at the Children's Museum and were found to be both highly educational and interesting.

The Science Club had its annual Thanksgiving luncheon November 20 which proved to be a huge success. Dr. Mackey, the special speaker, brought a most inspiring message to the club and various club members displayed their talents.

Keep your eyes looking toward the area beside the cafeteria this spring. The Science Club has planted some lovely shrubs and flowers in this spot as one of its projects.

The Science Club joins in hearty "thanks" to its sponsor, Mrs. Chambers, for her excellent guidance.

Borrowing Courtesy

It is Sunday and a student has just discovered that he is out of tooth paste and soap. Oh, well, he can borrow as before . . .

Lending is a giving gesture; borrowing is a receiving one, but when the borrower damages borrowed articles or forgets to repay them, it is a taking act. There is joy in giving, but also joy in having nice things and keeping them nice. No one takes care of the owner's properties as the owner himself, especially when they are costly and luxurious. "Running out" of usable articles can also become a habit and an expensive one for the lender.

Feelings eventually become involved among those who lend and borrow freely. An emergency is understandable, but the habit is irritating. It is best not to start the borrowing process if friendships are to last.

Tuberculin Test Is Given

Miss Uldine Stewart, our efficient school nurse, has given sixty-eight tuberculin tests so far this quarter.

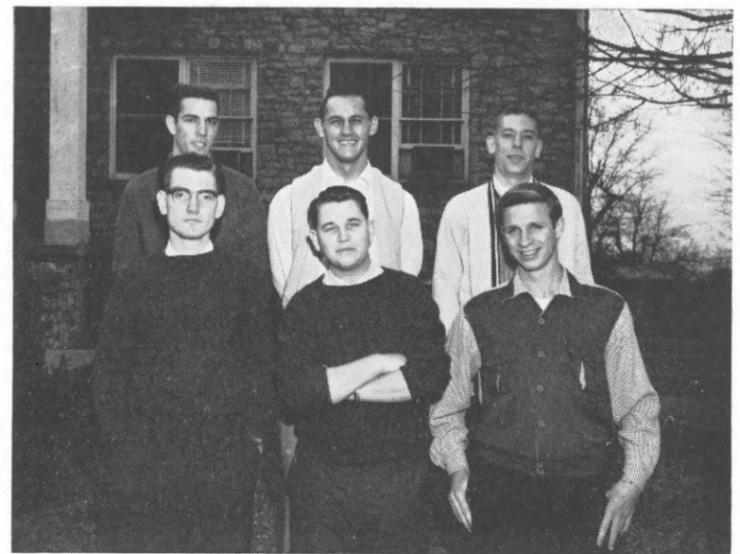

This test is a valuable aid in diagnosing tuberculosis. Tuberculin is injected into the person's arm. Within a few hours a reddening will appear if the reaction is positive. A positive reaction shows that a person is infected with the germ or at one time was infected.

Tuberculin was at first introduced as a cure for tuberculosis by Robert Koch. Now it is used only as a test. The importance of having the test is to find the disease before it reaches more advanced stages. Any number of infections can be prevented by early discovery and treatment.

Tuberculosis now ranks seventh among the greatest causes of death. Its toll is one-tenth of all human deaths. A rod-shaped parasite 1/8000 of an inch long causes the disease. One type is commonly found in milk from infected cows. For this reason milk is safe only after being pasteurized.

Hope can be seen for the future. Preventive measures and immunization will eliminate tuberculosis as an important cause of human death.

You can help eliminate tuberculosis by building a healthy body to resist the germ. Right now you can help by having a tuberculin test!

Campus Adds New Signs

Stop!!! Have you noticed the new signs around campus? These signs, on the drive from Hart Street to the parking lot behind the Administration building, tell us that we have a one-way street between these two points. It is still a two-way street between the parking behind the Administration building and Lester Avenue. Let us all give a vote of thanks to the traffic committee, a part of the Student Council, for its effort to protect our lives and to relieve the congestion in this area.

Going the wrong direction on this one-way street or parking other than for loading and unloading will result in your receiving a traffic ticket from one of the committee members or an appointed representative.

All-Star Football Team Selected

The 1959 Trevecca All-Star Team was selected by the players of the three societies, and is composed of three Alphas and three Deltas. The team is headed by Glen Woods, this year's high scorer of the runners-up Delta Society.

- E. Glen Woods—Delta
- C. Buddy Ward—Alpha
- E. Wade Westbrook—Delta
- H. Ronnie Kennedy—Alpha
- QB. Bob Cook—Alpha
- H. Charles Kirby—Delta
