Second Seminar February 26

The first student-faculty seminar was held February 12. The subject was "The Bible and Evolution," presented by Professor Dix. Due to the fact that time was limited, a follow-up discussion was held the following Monday, February 18, to further explore the issues involved in the subject.

About thirty students and five faculty members attended the first seminar, and forty-five students and five faculty members attended the follow-up discussion.

The second student-faculty seminar will be held Tuesday, February 26 immediately after chapel. The paper to be presented is entitled "Significance of the Literary Classics to Modern Man" and will be presented by Dr. Charles Childers, divisional chairman of Languages, Literature and Fine Arts.

This paper will cover such subjects as The Divine Comedy by Dante, Shakespeare's plays, Milton's works and The Scarlet Letter by Hawthorne. Sources for Hawthorne may be found in the Literary History of the United States by Spiller, p. 416-440; Sources for Shakespeare and Milton may be found in the Literary History of England by Baugh on pages 519-540 and 673-696.

All students who are interested in the subject as well as those who are interested in furthering their education in this type of study are invited to participate.

March 5-7 are the days that have been set aside for a Missionary Convention here at Trevecca, sponsored by the Trevecca Missionary Fellowship. Dr. Coulter, who will be presiding, and Rev. Harry Rich from Haiti and Rev. Dean Galloway from Nicaragua will be the special speakers.

Tuesday, March 5, will be the city-wide missionary rally night. Services will be held during the chapel hour and at night March 5 and March 6. On March 7, service will be conducted only during the regular chapel hour.

During the afternoons, Dr. Coulter will be in the Conference Room on the second floor of the library where he will be available for counseling with students who plan to be missionaries. A receptionist will have already set up interview times for the convenience of all.

Rev. Rich and Rev. Galloway will have displays set up in the display room of the Mackey Library where all students and visitors are invited to see them. Here there will be informal conversation and interviews.

Dr. Coulter will be delivering the major message Thursday in chapel and both missionaries will be speaking Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Rev. George Coulter is the executive secretary of the Department of Foreign Missions in the Church of the Nazarene. He is presently the chief administrator in the denomination's program of world missions that now employs 560 missionaries in 42 world areas.

Rev. Harry A. Rich is a returned missionary from Haiti and is presently on a furlough in the United States, doing deputation work among the churches of our denomination. This is the first furlough for him and his wife.

A graduate of Eastern Nazarene College, Rev. Rich served as pastor of the Granite Nazarene Church in Quincy, Massachusetts for five years before being sent abroad as a missionary.

In Haiti, the Church of the Nazarene has 140 churches and preaching points with approximately 8,500 members.

Rev. Dean Galloway is a returned missionary to Nicaragua and is also doing deputation work while on furlough in the United States. This is the second furlough for him and his wife and two children.

Rev. Galloway was in charge of the Bible School in San Jorge and also assisted in starting a new church in Leon, one of the major cities in Nicaragua.

A graduate of Northwest Nazarene College, he served as pastor of two Nazarene churches before being assigned abroad.

Both Rev. Rich and Rev. Galloway will be staying in Tidwell Hall in the guest room during their visit at Trevecca. The planning committee of the convention felt that the students could become better acquainted with the missionaries this way.

During the last three Student Council meetings the class and departmental club presidents have been meeting with the Student Council to discuss the various possibilities of an "All-School Project." Some research has been done on three of the ideas discussed. These are:

1. Building campaign for a new gymnasium.

2. Redecorating the Chapel.

3. Landscaping the Library area.

The advantages and disadvantages of each have been given in called class meetings.

The advantages and disadvantages of each have been given in called class meetings. An opinion poll was taken and it was found that the student body was in favor of redecorating the chapel.

In the last Student Council meeting, Wednesday, after a general discussion, the Council voted for the redecoration of the chapel as this year's "All-School Project."

The Olivet Nazarene College Band will be coming to Trevecca April 19 to present a full concert. We hope that you will put this on your calendar. This occasion will be sponsored by the Student Council with financial support from the classes and clubs. Don Irwin, chairman of the Project Committee, has assigned each club and class a certain amount to contribute to this program. Although it is not compulsory to contribute, we hope that each class and club will cooperate.

With the Survey on Late Hours tallied, the Student Council is now setting forth in a new effort to get extended hours. We thank you for your help in this survey.

"South of The Border"

"South of the Border" was the theme and Dr. Parrott was the speaker at the Valentine Banquet sponsored by the Sophomore Class. This formal occasion is now on the memory pages of our minds.

The entertainment included combo playing by James Van Hook, Barbara Stiles, and Sharon Norrick with Dr. Childers acting as emcee.

In Dr. Parrott's talk he emphasized the need of maturity and self-growth.

"Hoosier Schoolmaster" Tomorrow Night at 7:00

Gene Dalton, Jerry Appleby, Weston Wilson, Eugenia Coud and Ann Jackson practice for tomorrow night's performance.

Coming February 23rd, the Speech Club will be presenting a folk comedy in three acts entitled "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," dramatized by Lee Norvelle.

Ralph Hartsook is a young and inexperienced schoolmaster who applies for the position of teacher of the Flat Creek Deestrick in Southern Indiana. He is accepted as a boarder in the home of Mr. Means, chief school trustee. Mr. Means' son, Bud, is the toughest boy in the school and takes a bully attitude toward the schoolmaster who soon subdues him by a yarn well told. The giggling daughter, Mirandy, is immediately interested in Ralph and is encouraged by Mrs. Means. In the Means' home, Ralph meets the lovely "bound girl," Hannah Thompson.

As the play progresses Ralph quells the boys in his school and earns their respect by pluck and ready wit. The spelling bee, which takes place one evening in the schoolhouse, is well-attended by almost everyone in town. To the surprise of everyone the schoolmaster is outspelled by Hannah. Hannah thinks the schoolmaster let her win out of kindness, but Ralph explains that he really did not know how to spell the word. He tells her how beautiful she is and that he loves her. Hannah cannot understand him, but she trusts him and warns him of a possible plot against him.

That evening the Schroeder's house was robbed and Ralph was suspected of the robbery. Gradually the whole community is in a state of distrust and anger against the schoolmaster. Ralph is arrested for the robbery, and things go badly for him at the trial when there are unexpected developments. The real criminals are discovered, and Ralph is entirely cleared, and Hannah learns that she is being unlawfully held by Mr. Means. A happy scene closes the play. Hannah and Ralph find happiness, and Bud Means finally gains courage to propose to the girl he loves, and the charming and interesting play comes to an end.

The main actors in the play are: Ole Jack Means, school trustee—Gene Dalton; Sarah Jane, his wife—Karen Skinner; Bud, their son—Weston Wilson; Mirandy, their daughter—Eugenia Cloud; Ralph Hartsook, the schoolmaster—Jerry Appleby; Hannah Thomson, the bound girl—Ann Jackson.

The chairmen of the committee's are: Publicity, Janet Vernon; program, Linda Linn; make-up, Ann Van Hook; lighting, Gene Dunaway; costumes, Sandra Murphree; stage and properties, Carl Breder; receptor, Beverly Moore; music, Sharon Norrick; prompters, Sara Hill, and art work, Barbara Johnson.

The play is being directed by Sharron Marlin under the supervision of Professor Jernigan and Dr. Parrott.

Do Penalty Hours Earn "A's"?

Compulsory attendance has been a topic of discussion at several universities and colleges of late. Several professors as well as students feel that the cut regulation should be dropped from the rule book. For example, The Emory Wheel of Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia, quoted Dean John C. Stephen of the College as saying the faculty feels students are mature enough to accept the responsibility of governing their own attendance. At this university, the juniors and seniors were not at the time regulated by the cut system. Dean Stephen was calling for the release of the limited cut stipulation from the freshmen and sophomores.

Here at Trevecca, we receive penalty hours after the maximum amount of cuts are used up. Even if the particular student earns an "A" in the course, several penalty hours may be tagged to his record. Also if a student is sick and has to miss classes above his quota, penalty hours are added. Why? If a student has the ability to earn an "A" on the curve system when not coming to class, why should he be compelled to attend a class when he could, for instance, more profitably spend his time in the library?

Some have raised questions about the maturity of the students: are they mature enough to attend classes without the threat of penalty hours? If a student is mature enough to be away from home in college, should he not have the maturity to know if he needs to meet with his class to gain the education that he has come for?

Many of Trevecca's students are working and thus are earning their own money for their college education. In other words it is their own money not their parents' that they are wasting (?) when they do not attend classes.

It seems that some other means than the penalty hour system could be found to compel students to attend classes. For instance the professor could make his lectures a bit more interesting so that more intrinsic motivation would be generated in the student. Pop quizzes could be given which would be averaged in to determine the final grade. Students could be graded more on class participation which would be further incentive to attend classes.

If other universities and colleges are questioning the soundness of requiring their students to attend classes, should not we too inspect our program and see if it needs revamping? Does it not seem that Christian students should on the whole be more mature than their non-Christian colleagues?

Dues, Dues, Dues

"Have you paid your dues this quarter?" Do you ever tire of being asked this question? Treasurer, do you ever get tired of asking it? Of course you do.

Other Nazarene Colleges do not have this problem. Why can't we follow their example? Every student is required to pay his dues with registration fees or before he can get his clearance card. By this method the whole class shares the responsibility and there is enough money to carry on activities without car washes and bake sales, which no one has time to prepare for.

By our method here at T.N.C., a minority group carries the financial burden as well as the load of activities. Married students who are in a majority in the Junior and Senior classes are, as a rule, no longer interested in class activities and do not pay or participate. Yet they are part of the class and become a burden in our antiquated point system.

Some have suggested that it is easier to raise five more dollars with tuition money than to take it out of a food allowance week by week. Somehow, most students are always hungry.

Five dollars times seventy-five people would bring $375 into the class coffers every quarter. Think of the really good programs, projects and banquets we could have with this much money. Instead we struggle along with the average $1.00 per person that the treasurers manage to drag out of a few students each quarter.

Is there a valid reason why we could not institute a system like this here at Trevecca? Why should a small number of students work so hard to obtain something which could be obtained easily if everyone shared in the responsibility?

WHAT CAN WE DO TO CREATE MORE SCHOOL SPIRIT?

Why does Trevecca have so few seniors? Is it because the curriculum is too easy or too difficult or because the financial burden is too severe? Or is it because Trevecca seniors lack the prestige accredited to seniors of other colleges? Many students feel that this lack of prestige causes upperclassmen to transfer from Trevecca in their third and fourth years of college.

Even freshmen feel that seniors should be given more prestige. Connie Gordon, representing Trevecca's first year students, explains, "Seniors should be given more social privileges such as late dates, later hours in relation to the other classes, and single dating. By their fourth year of college, they are old enough to decide for themselves the amounts of study and leisure time necessary."

Jean Thrasher, sophomore, feels that, "People who have enough determination to reach their senior year of college are certainly mature enough to govern and discipline themselves. They should be given a chance to mature socially as well as intellectually."

Jim Eades, junior, agrees wholeheartedly with the lower classmen and adds, "Prominence in places such as chapel and 'all-school' gatherings would add to senior prestige."

Sharron Marlin portrays the opinion among her fellow seniors. When presented with this problem she simply asked, "What privileges do we have now?"

It should be remembered that privilege and prestige do not come without responsibility. The senior class has assumed responsibility by leadership in the student council, publications, C.W.A., T.A.A., and various committees, and ranks second only to the freshman class in the class of the year race.

So let's give credit where credit is due. Let's respect and appreciate our senior class and grant to its members the privileges and prestige they deserve.

Are All Commies Hijackers?

What is the importance of the recent hijacking of a Venezuelan ship? Certainly the Communist leaders are not so devoid of sense that they could imagine that one more ship could be so important. In fact, there are serious doubts that the reason could be that the commies really wanted "political prisoners" that were receiving asylum in Venezuela, although they offered hostages that they held in exchange for the so-called Prisoners. Certainly, the commies would have been more successful at underground means of capture than this open proclamation of hostility and lawlessness. There is evidently some link between this occurrence and the past antics of Castro sympathizers such as the hijacking of American airplanes . . . Which were followed later by definite proof of Soviet buildup in Cuba. Yes?

What with court trials being the center of controversy, Castro stealing ships, Tennessee state taxes going higher than Federal income taxes, one would not be quick to doubt this little incident . . . Before rescue operations however, the rescue crew dropped to him a miniature rocket wrapped in a newspaper with a note attached. BOOK REVIEW

"Battle of the Civil War"

Of special interest to American history students is the book Battles of the Civil War which was donated to the Mackey Library by Professor M. E. Redford.

Major General U. S. Grant III and Robert E. Lee IV, descendants of the two great war leaders, introduce the book. Listing the battles of the Civil War chronologically as they were fought, the book gives the following information: (1) date of the battle, (2) a 15 inch by 21 inch picture of the battle, (3) where the original print is located, (4) history of the particular battle, and (5) information about the narrator, including his native home, his qualifications, and the contributions he has made to Civil War history and literature.

Major General U. S. Grant III: "Now after a hundred years, the bitterness of the struggle is shrouded in the mist of the past, and we may all well draw inspiration and

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I have been at Trevecca now for two quarters and I must admit I like it. The students are friendly; the faculty care for the students; the food is good, and there are many good Christian activities to fill our free time, that is if we have any free time.

No institution of higher learning is faultless, however. Trevecca does have its bad points. There is a problem that concerns our library that is caused by an oversight on the part of us students. That is talking in the stacks area.

Back in this section, one can hear, if he is lucky, sermon outlines being swapped, the results of the latest student-lead revival, what boy is going with what girl, and the "goofs" a teacher made in class.

As I said before, this is an oversight but a harmful one. Noises from the stacks drift into the main reading room and disturb those who are studying. It bothers those who are working in the back of the stacks. It also causes the sudden appearance of a member of the library staff whose sole duty is to write entries on our registration cards. And this is not very conducive to studying in the library either.

With some thought we can overcome this problem. I will do my best to obey the rules of the library and I hope you will too.

—Gene Dunaway

Dear Editor,

Is depriving the students of attending the church of his choice interfering with his constitutional rights? During the Benson Lectures on campus, several local churches were holding revivals, also. To be forbidden to go and support the revival for which we have worked and prayed for weeks in advance, definitely does not permit true Christian rights. Is Trevecca so self-centered and close-minded that it does not recognize the fact that the churches throughout Nashville, especially the smaller churches, enhanced patriotic devotion from the way Americans gave an outstanding example of how to fight a war, but also of how to end a war."

Robert E. Lee IV: "During the years 1961-65 there is no thought of refighting the Civil War, rather a commemoration of four years in the history of the United States that eventually determined the united strength of this nation.

C W A REPORT

By Martha Hord

Have you ever lost anything? Or, shall we say, forfeited an opportunity? I am sure the majority of us have. So many times there are opportunities and privileges that we just pass by lightly, or fail to utilize to their fullest capacity. After these "unseen blessings" slip by we realize just how much we have missed.

Is this not true with Christian Work? Are we just letting opportunities and chances for service go by without concern. Sometimes we take for granted the thing that can benefit us most.

Hearing Rev. Lowell Foster, when he was here for the special services, tell how much Christian Work had meant to his life should have challenged us to do more.

A recent graduate of Trevecca recently wrote, "I miss the work so. There are lots of Sundays I would give just about anything to be able to go to Meharry Hospital. You will never know how to appreciate the Christian Work till you are where you are not able to participate."

Perhaps we should stop and think what we are missing when we forfeit opportunities. Perhaps one day it will be one of our bitter regrets.

Dear Trev-Echoes Editor:

In the most recent issue of Trev-Echoes, an article entitled "Kill or be Killed" was included in the sports section.

The article concerned basketball here at Trevecca and literally denounced it as a game of maul-ball. Furthermore it criticized the players, portraying them as clumsy, club-footed bunglers who should be lifting weights instead of playing basketball.

Such an article is detrimental to Trevecca and to its students. It is not constructive criticism but destructive criticism.

An outsider reading the article would conclude that T.N.C.'s sports program is something to be made fun of rather than enjoyed and appreciated. This type of article might even change some high school student's mind about attending Trevecca, especially young men who excel in sports.

So, how about it, students? If we can't write something good or at least something constructive, then maybe it's best to just remain silent.

Ding a ling...

I guess it all started back at old Stone U. when the cave man realized that cave woman existed, so he went to the edge of the cliff, cupping his hands to his mouth and calling across to the woman's cavitry, thus communication...

Somewhere down the line, I attribute in a fictitious way to the orient, the idea of tying two dixie cups to a long strong advanced communication, thus a more private conversation...

Alexander Graham Bell invented the best means, and when those famed words came over the wire, "Mr. Watson, come here," a whole new era in communication began. This introduced the rural telephone, the party line, and Bessie, a walking town encyclopedia of gossip, the operator. When a fellow called his girl for a date, everyone knew and the party lines began to burn with yap, yap, yap...

Down through the years, the telephone has developed into a useful servant to mankind; useful, but complicated. Bessie was replaced by a system of Alpines, Maplecrest, Riversides and such, and even more progress has been made in the long distance dialing, for example dial 987-353572 and you may end up talking to the TAJ MAHAL in India...

What would college students do without the phone booths to climb into? What would Trevecca students do without telephones... Without the telephone Jr. Lewis would have to give up his two hour goodnight to Patsy. In that sense a dime goes a long way...

Having a telephone and using it is another story... I know a fellow who wore the grooves off his dime putting it through the phone trying to call McKay hall... And then there are the lucky guys who work at motels, like Gene Wiseman. He simply plugs in all the outside lines and starts dialing AL-6945... and sooner or later Jennie will be on the other end.

This telephone situation is completely out of balance with a ratio of 75:1, but I solved the problem by returning to the old Stone U. method, simply throwing a stone at Ruth's window... one day it was open... Will the dorms be considered at least one more telephone?

Snap Shots...

And Larry Dodson was so completely all throbbled with his valentine that he sent his trousers back with his rented dinner jacket...

Fidel Farley says he WON'T disband, his beard that is... but the President says he may have to take drastic steps and be forced to use BLUE BLADES... speaking of hair, Ann Van is back in style since Jim, Phoebe, and Larry ran into a bottle of PEROXIDE... Lynn decided to go all out... and Pop Keys is busy memorizing the names of PASTORS... he and Mom have been traveling with the choirs for fifteen years... and every year they're ready to go again... and I'm ready to go...

Teacher Translation

(ACP) Many college professors seem to have an unerring talent for not saying exactly what they intend to say. The Daily Universe, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, therefore offers the following translations:

What the professor says:	What the professor means:
The textbook for this course will be one you will want to keep all your life.	The book costs $15.95, and they won't be buying it back next semester.
My philosophy of teaching embodies the principles of certain academic disciplines.	I'm a bear!
Of course, you all know that the honor system is in effect in this classroom.	You'll notice I've passed out alternate tests, and I'll monitor the classroom.
I know you would enjoy delving more deeply into this interesting subject.	You'll be expected to hand in at least two research papers this term.
The final grades will be determined on a rigid curve.	I plan to give one "A" in this class.
It might be well for me to cite one or two concrete examples of this principle.	Prepare to hear the history of my life.
The final exam will be nothing more than a brief review.	Memorize the textbook.
Watch out, however. There are some cagey professors who actually say what they mean.

Van Hooks Present Joint Recital

Ann and James Van Hook prepare for their coming recital.

Hard work and many hours are being spent in practice by James and Ann Van Hook of High Point, North Carolina, who are presenting a joint recital Friday, March 1.

The recital will be presented in four groups with a piano and trumpet duet as the finale. The first group will be presented by James, soloist, who will sing such religious compositions as the Ninety-First Psalm by Mac Dermid, The Lord is My Light by Speaks, Art Thou the Christ by O'Hara, and a recitative and an aria from the Messiah by Handel.

The second section, presented by Ann, pianist, will include the pieces, La Cathedral engloustie by Debussy, Rustles of Spring by Sinding, and Capriccio in D minor by Brahms.

James will then present the third group which is composed of secular pieces. Some of these are I Love Life by Mana-Zucca, A Spirit Flower by Camphill-Lipton, and Shoes by Manning. James will be accompanied by Sylvia Thrasher.

In the fourth section Ann will play Sonata II in D flat minor by Chopin.

Ann, a sophomore, is an education-psychology major and music minor. She has been studying piano for eight years.

During high school she was president of High Point Teen-age Chapter of the National Federation of Music Clubs and was the representative of her city and district to the Women's Clubs' Music Contest. Also while in high school she was a member and an assistant accompanist of the A Cappella Choir.

Ann is presently a member of the Music Club and president of the North Carolina Club, and she has been a member of the Girl's Chorus for two years. She is also the Fashions' columnist for TREV-ECHOES.

After graduation she plans to teach on the elementary school level.

James, a senior, is a Christian-Education major and Church Music minor. During high school he played in the orchestra and band. He was president of the Dramatics Club, a representative to All-State, a member of the Key Club and president of the Bible Club.

Presently he is Minister of Music at Grace Church of the Nazarene here in Nashville. Also he is the director of the Trevedores. He has been a member of the A Cappella Choir for two years and was president of the Sophomore Class. He is now a member of the Music Club. He and his wife, the former Sue Hayes, reside on Nance Lane.

Next year James plans to work on his Master's degree in Instrumental Education at Peabody.

Club and Class Memos

Thursday evening, February 21, the members of the Literary Society enjoyed a delicious chili supper with their sponsor Mrs. K. W. Phillips, as hostess. The group enthusiastically discussed the results of a recent survey taken among colleges and universities throughout the nation. The survey suggested a list of books to be read by college students. Books among the most highly recommended were:

The Bible, Pride and Prejudice, The Scarlet Letter, The Iliad and Odyssey, Oedipus, Waldren, Franklin's Autobiography, Don Quixote, Aeneid, and Gulliver's Travels.

The Literary Society will have a combined business meeting and discussion period on Monday, February 25 in the lounge of the Library. The topic for discussion will be the "Life and Works of Robert Frost." Mr. Frost, the unofficial poet laureate of America, was a trail blazer in American poetry.

All students who are interested in the subject are invited to attend.

The Art Club recently visited a Modern Art Exhibit, held at Vanderbilt University. The evening was climaxed with a dinner at Morrison's. They are currently making preparation for the annual Art Exhibit which the Club sponsors each year. The exact date will be announced later.

This will include fifty dollars for each missionary and half of their traveling expenses to the campus; the other half being contributed from Kansas City. Betas Clinch Championship

For the third successive season the Betas have won the basketball championship. The mighty champs, who have four players that are averaging more than 10 points per game, have gone undefeated through eight games and have only two games remaining. The Alphas have clinched second place with a four win—four loss record, leaving the winless Deltas in the cellar.

first half in which the leaders managed only a 27-21 lead, the Betas started rolling with their fast break. Lloyd Manning paced all scorers with 23 points, while Ken Walker scored 17 and Everett Hanner added 14 for the Betas. Ed Sisson again led Alpha scorers with 22.

Beta 64, Delta 42

It was the same, familiar story as the Betas rolled to the tune of a 64-42 triumph over the Deltas. Balanced scoring, strong rebounding, and good depth told the story. After a 29-18 halftime lead, the Betas finally poured on the coal. Ken Walker and Lloyd Manning scored 17 each for the winners and Jim Knight added 10. Jan Forman paced all scorers with 21. Walker, 6'5" Beta center, lead all rebounders with 13. The Betas only outshot the Deltas 38% to 35%, but managed to shoot 22 more times.

Alpha 76, Delta 46

Behind the strength of a sensational shooting display by Ed Sisson, the Alphas easily handled the Deltas. Sisson blistered the nets with 16 baskets and 8 free throws for the season's high of 40 points. The Alpha big gun also collected 17 rebounds in the contest. Red Sebring was the only other Alpha in double figures, collecting 12 points. Jan Forman led Delta scorers with 10 points. Don Hale was the other strong rebounder for the Alphas, gathering in a total of 13. The Alphas hit on 32 of 85 shots for 38% while the Deltas hit on 18 of 55 for 32%. Halftime score was 34-18 in the Alpha's favor.

Beta 96, Alpha 53

In championship style the Betas won the championship, trouncing the second place Alphas 96-53. The Betas, playing at full strength, ran their way to victory over the Alpha squad, which was playing with its

Beta 68, Delta 39

Four Betas dumped in double figures as the league leaders rolled to their fourth straight victory in easy fashion, a 68-39 triumph over the Deltas. Ken Walker, Lloyd Manning, Jim Knight, and Everett Hanner scored 16, 15, 12, and 11 respectively in pacing the winning cause. No Delta player scored more than eight, with Jan Forman and Wayne Dollar leading the team. The Betas outshot the Deltas from the floor 46% to 25%. Ken Walker grabbed 14 rebounds, while Mike Golden picked off 11 to lead the Deltas.

Alpha 81, Delta 45

Although Jan Forman drilled in 26 points, the Deltas were sent to their fifth defeat in as many games by the Alphas. Five Alphas hit for 10 or more points, paced by Ed Sisson's 19 points. Alpha fast-breaks resulted in 16 points for Dennis Orner and 13 points for Red Sebring. Don Hale added 12 and Glen Wheaton contributed 10. Sisson accounted for 17 rebounds, and Forman and Lester Byington each got 13 rebounds. Orner and Sebring were thorns in the Deltas' offense, each making six interceptions. The Alphas made 43% of their shots in rolling up the highest point total to date.

Beta 70, Alpha 44

The Betas continued their onslaught against the rest of the league, clubbing the Alphas 70-44. After a slow star, Ed Sisson. Time and again the champs recovered a loose ball and quickly converted it into two points. After running up a huge 50-24 halftime lead, the Beta second team took charge, and they held their own. Beta starters re-entered the game with six minutes remaining, and pressed for the 100-mark against the exhausted Alpha five. Lloyd Manning and Jim Knight topped six Beta scorers who ended in double figures with 20 points apiece. Everett Hanner came through with 14 and Jim Stocks, Don Irwin, and Ken Walker each hit 10 for the winners. Red Sebring topped all Alpha scorers with 19 points, but was closely followed by Don Hale's 16. Lester Byington added 12. The Betas dominated the rebounds, collecting 46 to the Alphas 26. Walker led all rebounders with 14.

Beta 87, Delta 37

Twenty interceptions by the Beta team led to many fast break situations and an 87-37 triumph for the champs. Of these 20, Jim Knight picked off seven Delta passes. Ken Walker dumped in 25 points and cleared 16 rebounds, and Lloyd Manning scored 23 for the winners. Everett Hanner added 13 and Roger Costa 4. Wayne Dollar and Garry Scales paced the Deltas with 14 and 12 respectively. The Betas ran up a 41-27 halftime lead and continued on the rampage throughout the game.
