Senior Class Poem

REMINISCENCE AND BLESSINGS

When years have passed, and we at last
Approach the setting sun,
Our weary eyes behold blue skies
Of youth, while life is done;
And we forget the trials we've met
Along the thorny ways,
And live again in thoughtful mien
Our happy college days.

Then passing time will make sublime
These ills which we must bear;
What now seems pain will be our gain,
And make our lives more fair.
Our hearts must need with sorrow bleed
At thoughts of parting soon,
Our ways must part, but not our hearts,
When we must go in June!

Our deepest praise, our sweetest lays,
Our school we give to thee—
Our future aims, our highest fame,
We gain because of thee.
But still we know the debt we owe
Is more than we can pay,
But we will strive to give our lives,
'Tis all that we can say!

To those we leave our place we give,
To hold the standard high,
Till all shall see that right must be
The victor, or we die!
Trevacca, thou must always be
Our Alma Mater dear,
Our God we pray to bless thy way
Throughout each coming year.

LOIS THROWER.

History of the Senior Class

● There is nothing greater than the realization that the goal toward which you set is within reach. The senior class of nineteen hundred thirty-six now rests on the top peak of the mountain. As we stand on the summit ready to face the great problems of life, our memory carries us back to the beginning of our life in T. N. C.

● In the days of '34 a band of brave soldiers marched into the valley of learning. The field was large, and we encountered many difficulties, endured severe hardships; but the light of faith, beaming serenely, helped us in our journey upward.

● As we struggled up the narrow path, with the mountains of Wisdom, Freedom, and Dignity looming above our heads, many became tired of the battle and fell out of our ranks. We who are seniors today persevered to the end.

● Under the splendid leadership of Mary Sims we passed through the "University of Hard Knocks" at the hands of the seniors during our freshman year. But a good class cannot be kept down, and we came through without the loss of a soldier.

● After a year of traveling, Wisdom Mountain lay beneath and straight ahead lay Freedom Heights. The beauties of Park Educatia, divided into many sections, gave us inspiration and hope for the future. Dr. Hardy and the faculty were always faithful in directing us to the path of Dignity Peak. Reeford Chaney gave evidence of becoming a great general by the tactful way he maneuvered our class through the senior year. We became noted for our ability to do things, and if we were not always victorious, we were always good losers.

● June finds us securely planted on Dignity Mountain from whose summit we view the world in all its glory. We are proud of our achievement, but realize the danger of looking backward, and we turn our faces toward new opportunities. The class hopes that its departure will be more felt than its arrival, and that the improvement made here will be but an intimation of future success. As we leave forever the halls of Trevacca, we dedicate ourselves anew to the service of God, our Country, and our College, and renew our determination that, "As long as the sand o' life shall run our endeavor shall be 'to strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.'"

● The Theological College Department offers courses leading to the degree of Bachelor of Theology (Th.B.). The prescribed work for earning this degree is graduation from Junior College with two additional years of college grade theological work superimposed, or 192 quarter hours in all.

● Our students of this department are striving to secure the best possible preparation in order to be more efficient in Christian service.

● In this day of modernism, when false doctrines abound, and when the love of many is waxing cold, we need to contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints.

● But zeal without knowledge is often fatal. God declares, "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." A preacher may save himself with little knowledge, but his usefulness to others will be greatly limited. His life's work is to win others. Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that he be possessed of a well-balanced conception of truth and an accurate knowledge and sound teaching. We need a ministry baptized with the Holy Ghost and fire to proclaim the word with boldness and with power. It is the aim of this department to produce such ministers; and we trust we are realizing that aim.

Class Aim

*We do not live for fame,
But each small place to fill;
For 'tis our life, our aim,
To do the Master's will.*

*Each day that dawns we'll lend
Our lives unto the Lord,
That he may make them blend
Into a living word.*

*Sometimes the road seems dreary
And weighted down with care;
Where thorns and thistles grow
You'll find some roses there.*

*God hath not sealed our fate;
But if we stand the test,
Though small it be, or great,
He'll give his very best.*

We leave the schools of learning
To join the school of life.*

High School Senior Prophecy

● One day as I was sitting in the sun parlor of my bungalow, there suddenly came a rap at the door. Reluctantly answering it, I found our postman, who handed me a special delivery letter which, upon opening, I found contained five thousand dollars willed to me by my wealthy uncle who had recently died.

● I returned to my knitting, my mind busied with thoughts of a thousand and one methods whereby the money might profitably be used. Finally I turned my radio on to hear an hour of evangelistic music. At the end of the program the announcer stated that the month of August would bring special rates for excursion to Egypt and the Holy Land. It dawned upon me at once that this would be a profitable way to spend the money since it had always been my desire to visit the pyramids.

● I sent in my name as a prospective passenger and immediately started my plans for the trip.

● On the morning of August 9, 1953, the U. S. S. Washington set out for the great world of the East. All the way over I planned how best to occupy my time. It passed all too soon, for on August 28 we pushed into the port of Africa, and soon I found myself in the fascinating land of Egypt. After a short rest I began my adventures.

● We soon found a guide, and when he asked us where we would like to go first, we voted for the pyramids. Early one morning we started out for the Gizeh Pyramid to see the Cheops, one of the seven wonders of the world and the largest structure made by man.

● After admiring the massive structure standing high in the heavens, we entered a dark, winding entrance which led gradually down for 321 feet to the Chamber of the great Cheops, lined with polished slabs of red granite. It was thought to be his burial place.

● While we were inspecting this marvelous room a small voice said, "I tell to man his end." With screams and shrieks the group rushed out, but before I could join them a door slammed—I stood motionless. Again the voice spoke, but more gently: "What can I do for you?" The first thing that entered my mind was the fate of the Trevecca High School seniors of nineteen hundred thirty-six. I thus informed him, and after offering me a seat he began: "The vice-president, Clarence Haisten, is an English professor at Yale, majoring in nominative absolutes. The secretary, Mrs. Lawson, and her husband are nurse and surgeon in a great hospital in France. The treasurer, Harold Glenn, and his wife, the former Gertrude McClain, live on a ranch in Colorado, where Glenn learns all the history he desires and Gertrude enjoys romantic sunsets and sunrises on the mountain. Mr. Calvin, the bookworm of the senior class, has become a famous lawyer of Boston; Miss Bryer has married a wealthy London merchant; but Aubrey Garrison is still cutting wood for Trevecca."

● The voice ceased, and the door opened. Scarcely aware of what I was doing I walked out the door into the dark entrance again. I whistled to the guide, and he escorted me out. How glad I was to be on familiar ground again!

- The Men's Quartet bids fair to be one of the best quartets that the college has ever produced.
- The Ladies' Trio has soothed the sorrows and lent a helping hand in many funerals throughout the city of Nashville.
- The Men's Trio has been touring our Educational Zone with Rev. H. H. McAfee, field representative. They have proven a great blessing to our constituency.

College Chorus

● Music is of God. Harmony, rhythm, melody, and beauty are laws of God's universe.

● From the beginning of time the soul of man has received from the Creator a craving for expression through the medium of music. In no more satisfying manner has his sorrow been soothed, his fears quelled, and his hopes renewed than through music.

● Not only has the Christian worshiped God through music, but he has been able to render valuable service to his needy fellow man by this means, for

*"Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast,
To soften rocks or bend the knotted oak."*

● Our school seeks to develop character and prepare students for soul-winning. For both purposes the music department is indispensable. In this department we become acquainted with some of the world's noblest souls and their productions, both classical and sacred. Moreover, we seek to acquire an acceptable proficiency in the performance of the master works. In the piano and voice studios and in the music classrooms, this year, we have seen progress toward the attainment of our goal.

Miss Duggan: "I didn't think it was necessary, sir. I've always heard that history repeats itself."

Mr. Hendrix (to a candidate for president of Literary Society): "What do you intend to do if you are elected?"

Mr. Chaney: "My goodness! What shall I do if I'm not elected?"

Mr. Boggy: "Miss Cooper, what do you mean by spilling my coffee all over me?"

Pansy Cooper: "Never mind, I'll get you some more."

Garrison having accidentally broken a pane in a window of a house on Broadway attempted as fast as he could to get out of the way, but he was followed by the proprietor, who exclaimed: "You broke my window, rascal, did you not?"

Mr. Garrison: "To be sure, I did, and didn't you see me running home for the money to pay you for it?"

Mr. Stocks: "If my employer does not take back what he said to me this morning I shall leave his house."

Mr. Haisten: "Why, what did he say?"

Mr. Stocks: "He told me I could look for another place."

(In Biology Class—a lesson on ventilation)—

Mrs. Redford: "J. D. Irwin, probably someday you'll be interested in ventilating your house. Do you know how to adjust the windows to get the best ventilation?"

Mr. Irwin: "That doesn't bother me. I'll have 112 pounds of oxy 'Gin' then."

TREVECCA NAZARENE COLLEGE

Is the recognized educational institution of the Church of the Nazarene, representing the Southeastern Zone. This year finds the school again in a new location. We have three buildings in our present plant: the girls' dormitory, a large brick building, modern in every respect; the boys' dormitory, a four-story stone structure, also with modern conveniences; and the administration building which provides adequate rooms for classes, offices, etc. We can truly say that Trevecca is housed in the best buildings she has ever occupied. Last year we leased the present site, renovated it throughout, and have actually transformed the place into a very valuable plant. The new temporary chapel and dining hall were the main additions. We have splendid prospects for another successful term. Much credit is due Brother W. F. Collier, our present business manager, for this year's success. He has done remarkably well in getting the school in shape for occupancy.

The student body, as a whole, is the best since we came into existence. Trevecca is truly a character-building institution. God has wonderfully blessed her this year and in past years, and has brought her through every disaster. We believe that our school, in keeping with Nazarene work the world over, is destined to move forward. May God smile upon her future and prosper her efforts to make the world a better place to live in.
